Musings from a Soon-to-Be Has-Been

Dear Brothers and Friends of Sigma Phi Epsilon:

I began writing a column as I sat in my hotel room in Chicago last October, waiting to go to the airport. We had just completed a joint meeting of the Fraternity's national committees—Leadership, Member Development, Marketing and Communications, Technology, Recruitment, and Volunteers—and I was so excited that I wanted to get my thoughts down before they passed as the excitement would (old age will do that to you).

My excitement was occasioned not just by the technical success of the weekend, i.e., large attendance, great interaction among the committees, good setting, great food, lots of laughter, and attendance at the Barry Manilow concert, thanks to the generosity of National Director and Foundation President Garry C. Kief, Southern California '70, but because the constant, consistent, unwavering theme of everyone was “how do we ensure a good, valid, challenging, and rewarding four-year experience for our undergraduates?”

For while there are certainly exceptions, as a general proposition our alumni don't commit their financial resources or contribute their time unless they have good memories of their undergraduate experience. Chris Minnis, Truman State '00, our Director of Operations, used a quote from Eli Neuburger, Technology Manager for the Ann Arbor, Michigan, District Library, when speaking to a group of librarians, that is certainly applicable to us:

“If you don't offer them something that has value to them now, you're going to be irrelevant to them for the rest of their lives.”

The reason why we are developing a very organized and detailed program of recruiting, training, and retaining our volunteers under the direction of Gary Huff, Central Arkansas '91, and with the leadership of Phil Cox, Indiana '84, and the Volunteers Committee is not to be able to brag about how many volunteers we have across the country, or to develop a super alumni program, but for those trained volunteers to do a better job of mentoring and guiding our undergraduate chapters.

Our success in that endeavor will do more to ensure the future financial success of our Foundation and of increasing our pool of potential volunteers than any amount of letters, phone calls or Grand President columns could ever accomplish.

I know that every SigEp volunteer experiences the same reaction I get on a regular basis from my coworkers and friends. “You're going to fly to California and give up your weekend? For what? A bunch of frat boys? Why?”

I've given up trying to explain why I and countless others do what we do. For me, part of it is, of course, the job, the title, and what naturally goes with that. But, the rest, the thing that keeps me going, is the absolute conviction that this Fraternity can change lives for the better. If we didn't believe that, none of us would leave the comfort of our dens to venture out weeknights and weekends to help our undergraduate and alumni Brothers. Having a chapter president from a chapter previously on the edge of having its charter revoked come up to me at a CLA and tell me how well things are going with the chapter now makes it all worthwhile.

At the Chicago meeting, Past Grand President Mike Williams, U. of Memphis '69, of the Volunteers Committee told the group that of all the accolades and recognition he had received from the Fraternity, none had touched him more than a letter he received signed by all the undergraduate Brothers at Memphis, thanking him for his service to the chapter.

At the conclusion of the meeting, Mike said, “It is good to be a SigEp.” Would that all our undergraduates would say that today and continue to say it the rest of their lives.

A Final Thank You

This is my last issue of The Journal as Grand President, and although much work remains to be done before the August Grand Chapter Conclave in Atlanta, this is my last opportunity to thank you in this column.

I've often said that when they write the history of blessed and fortunate men, they should devote an entire chapter to me. Among the highest blessings is to have been called out to lead this great Fraternity. The office of Grand President is held in high respect regardless of who holds it at any time. I have been so impressed by the reception my wife, Elaine, and I have received everywhere this job has taken us.

I thank Elaine for her unending support and understanding. She, like the spouses and significant others of our staff, has spent many weekends alone, always without complaint. Every time she has gone with me, she has dived into the crowd and been a great representative of the Fraternity.

The Honorable Archer L. Yeatts, III, U. of Richmond '64, a native of the Commonwealth of Virginia, practiced law for 28 years until his election to the General District Court of Henrico County, Virginia, in July of 1995. Brother Yeatts served as the Fraternity's Legal Counsel for 15 years and was elected to the National Board of Directors in 2001. He and his wife Elaine live in Richmond, Virginia, and are the proud grandparents of Samuel Archer Timberlake and William Andrew Thomson.

Thanks to the members of the National Board of Directors and Grand Treasurer Chris Bittman, Colorado '85. I appreciate their dedication to the Fraternity, attending board meetings, events and committee meetings. We have had productive board meetings and developed good working relationships. Levity and a good sense of humor certainly have helped.

Thanks to our District Governors, Alumni and Volunteer Corporation (AVC) members, Chapter Counselors, Balanced Man Program Stewards, Resident Scholars, committee members, and all other volunteers for the incredible job they do with very little recognition.

To the entire Zollinger House staff, I say thank you for all you do, often without any recognition and always at salaries that need to be higher. You have treated me like one of you, and I have never entered the doors without feeling welcome. You work long hours all week and then are expected to be away many weekends still working. The Fraternity is fortunate to have each one of you.

Finally, thanks to Legal Counsel Doug Nabhan, Purdue '77, and his associates and staff at Williams Mullen. Doug succeeded me in 1995 and, like I, has viewed the Fraternity as much more than a client. He cares deeply about what happens to it.

Hope to see you in Atlanta for Conclave. Fraternally,

Archie

ON THE COVER

The men of Illinois Alpha at the University of Illinois stand together and stand proud in front of their chapter house in Champaign, Illinois. The Balanced Man Program has helped move them to dominate as the biggest fraternity on campus with 160 members while achieving the number two GPA of 3.39.

Executive Director's Note Journal Changes

CRAIG D. TEMPLETON
Kansas '81, Executive Director

Sigma Phi Epsilon takes great pride in The Journal's rich, century-long history in shaping not just SigEp, but its role in the greater fraternity movement. We have continuously raised the bar for our flagship publication. I've heard many comments about the latest issue setting a new standard, the last edited by E. Scott Thompson, II, Southern Mississippi '99, a great four-year run, punctuated with national awards for writing and design. Scott didn't go far—he has moved to the SigEp Educational Foundation to build alumni communications that pave the way for fund raising to overhaul our chapter housing.

As we look forward, we will explore innovative ways for The Journal and other communications avenues to keep in touch with undergraduates, alumni, parents and college administrators to help you stay connected with each other.

The first step is evidenced in this issue with our new editor, Gay-Lynn Carpenter. Gay-Lynn is an independent communications consultant who will take a hard look at how we are communicating our messages. I thought the best way to start that would be to have her edit The Journal for a period of time. She has more than 20 years experience, ranging from Fortune-500 corporate to smaller non-profit arenas, and provides a fresh perspective on what we do. Already, she has a remarkable grasp of what makes the Fraternity tick, and she is helping us connect our mission, values and Brothers with one interesting story after another.

You may pick up on some small indications of change in this issue. You'll notice more writers as we "get you talking to each other," as Gay-Lynn describes it. We have established a timing schedule for The Journal to align with the collegiate year, so you'll see issues in the beginning of the Fall and Spring semesters and in early Summer going forward. Over the coming year, Gay-Lynn has plans for a number of efforts to find out what you are looking for when you open this publication's pages or visit us online. If you want to offer your two cents, share a story lead, or contribute an article, send Gay-Lynn an e-mail at Journal@SigEp.net.

Letters to the Editor

COMMENTARY FROM YOUR BROTHERS

Journal Editor:

Thank you for the Winter 2006 SigEp Journal copy. I think the Kiffin Rockwell article turned out to be excellent: content, photos, layout, the whole bit. It was a labor of love and interest and required beaucoup work. Please pass my sentiments on along to Erin Mullally.

Sincerely, Kenneth Rockwell
(Kiffin Rockwell's nephew)

Journal Editor:

It was great to read about the honoring of Brother John Hofmann by naming the Cal Gamma (UCSB) chapter house after him.

After reading the story about John, I was amused at the comment that John's young son, Adam, made about how his father yelled at him for not keeping his room clean. Adam said that after visiting the chapter house, he was glad that his dad yelled at the Brothers too! The comment took me back to a conversation I had with John about the condition of the Fraternity while I lived there. I was trying to explain to him why I felt that the house looked "pretty good" despite his urgings to clean it up. After I was finished explaining why the house looked the way it did, John said, "you explained that well. I don't agree, but I think you should become a teacher, because you made me really understand your point of view." I didn't pay much attention to the comment but it stayed in the back of my mind.

Today I am a teacher. I love the profession, have won awards including finalist for California State Teacher of the Year and, in retrospect, I suppose I can credit John Hofmann with "putting the bug in my ear" to enter this noble profession. Thanks, John, for all you did for all those years, to help SigEps.

Mark Heinze,
California-Santa Barbara '82

Journal Editor:

In 1995 I rushed Cal Theta SigEp at California-Sacramento. As an undergrad, my fellow Brothers pushed me to pursue an active role in our campus leadership where I served as Director of Business, Director of Campus Life, and Interim Executive Vice President. The same year I pursued a highly sought after internship at Dean Witter. My fraternal experience allowed me to break the ice with the interviewing broker (an alum from a fraternity at his alma mater), giving me an edge and ultimately the internship that introduced me to investments and trading.

Twelve years later, I am happily married with two girls and Director of Operations for Rockwell Trading, Inc., where I coach novices and professionals all over the world on how to trade and invest successfully. The diligence I learned in my fraternal experience has definitely contributed to my successes. Knowing how to spot opportunity, setting goals and attaining them are at the heart of any successful trader, and that's what I teach. This week I am coaching students in the United States, United Kingdom, Russia, Spain, and Germany. You can say that a little SigEp diligence is being shared around the world with every coaching session.

Sacramento State '97

Red Door Notes

CHAPTER HOUSE PROFILES

Washington Alpha-Washington State

■ Washington Alpha began recolonization efforts in Fall, 2005, after having a chapter on campus from 1912-2003. The chapter closed for a two-year period due to risk management issues. With assistance from the National Housing Corporation, the chapter was able to retain its house while vacant and plan the appropriate fund-raising to finance needed improvements.

The tradition of a red door on Sigma Phi Epsilon chapter houses began at Syracuse University, New York Alpha, in 1928. The original house and red door are pictured above, at what is now the Slutzker Center for International Services. Today, nearly every SigEp chapter home has a red door.

■ The four-floor facility is nearly 14,000 square feet and has capacity for 61 men. It includes a resident advisor apartment for the live-in housing manager, a full basement, 22 study rooms and an outdoor basketball court.

■ The improvements were designed to support the tenets of the Balanced Man Ideal and give the Brothers a source of pride.

■ The $600,000 facility renovation was completed on budget in time for the beginning of the 2006 Fall semester. Improvements included new sprinkler and electrical systems, wireless internet, study lounges and upgrades such as carpeting, tile, showers, lighting and furnishings. New appliances were installed in the kitchen.

Kentucky Gamma-Kentucky Wesleyan College

■ Built in the 1950s, this floor of a residence hall serves as the home of the Kentucky Gamma chapter. It has a chapter room, study room, and 10 bedrooms to hold about 20 men. With the financial help of a new alumni corporation, the floor was recently renovated and awarded Home of the Year for their Region.

■ The chapter room was upgraded with hardwood laminate floors, new track lighting, new furniture, and a 52" flat screen TV.

■ The study room was re-carpeted and set up with four laptops, making it the only 24/7 computer lab on campus. Forty chairs were purchased for meetings and events.

Missouri Zeta-Southeast Missouri State

■ A Residential Learning Community grant will fund the creation of a Faculty Fellow office and two study/computer rooms in the Missouri Zeta facility. This includes new computers, permanent countertops, file cabinets and dedicated study areas.

■ Other major interior projects include the renovation of a chapter billiards room, chapter lounge, and long-term interior design projects including stained glass windows, a bronze Balanced Man logo and crest, six large wood carvings, trophy cases, and eight French doors etched with the SigEp Crest.

■ The exterior renovation includes adding a "Sound Body" Sports Field which includes a regulation size basketball court, tournament-size volleyball court, horseshoe pits, and a soccer practice field.

California-Berkeley Re-Charterers on 96th Anniversary

BY ALEX YIU AND NEVIN TREHAN
California-Berkeley '08

After three years of hard work and determination as a Sigma Epsilon Chapter (SEC), Berkeley was re-chartered. When it lost its chapter house in 2002 to the previous owners, Berkeley SigEp membership plummeted. That winter, the chapter surrendered its charter. In 2003, the Fraternity recolonized Berkeley as a Balanced Man SEC. This past November, Berkeley was pleased to celebrate the 96th anniversary of its original charter and receive its new charter on the same night from Grand President Archer L. Yeatts, III, U. of Richmond '64.

For two years, SigEp at Berkeley struggled to maintain membership and avoid stereotypical frat-boy activities. By winning the Phi Beta Kappa Wheelhouse Award and the Golden Circle Award, the SEC colony was proving its mettle. The chapter acquired a house in 2005 which spurred more progress toward a new charter and has reached its initial goal of 40 members. California Alpha will continue to offer the Berkeley students opportunities to excel in collegiate academic and physical activities and in post-graduate arenas as well.

Living the Balanced Man Ideal

Since 1910, Berkeley SigEp has combined the ideals of physical and mental health to promote success in all endeavors. Today's chapter continues this legacy by embracing the Balanced Man Program and its principles of Sound Mind and Sound Body.

With an average GPA of 3.33, the Brothers of Berkeley never forget their purpose in college and eagerly pursue their quest for knowledge. From rap battles to jazz jams to comedy clubs, members are exposed to a variety of events that they may not have experienced on their own. A professor at Cal spoke at the SigEp house on political activism and its importance, and the Dean of Student Life spoke at the Balanced Man Scholarship Banquet about improving the relationship between the Greek system and Berkeley's residents.

Outside the classroom, members take part in varsity sports, represented by Michael Beychok, '08, in tennis and Dan Lopez, '11, in football. Brothers also participate in intramural sports and other fitness activities. As top finishers in both flag football and basketball, Brothers strive to bring together Sound Mind and Sound Body on the playing field. A recent alumnus operating a local nutrition store visits often to speak on fitness and maintaining a healthy diet. Group weight-lifting and martial arts lessons are also incorporated into development, as are the annual white-water rafting trip and Cal-Stanford Paintball War.

Most members are also involved with other organizations on campus to squeeze the most out of college. SigEp Brothers are involved with student government, club athletics, political groups, activist groups, business fraternities and various cultural clubs.

Volunteer Support

Berkeley SigEps enjoy a strong alumni support base to expand the scope of the Brotherhood and strive to be the best fraternity on campus. Aside from the wisdom of experience, the alumni provide connections to off-campus organizations, such as local political campaigns. The AVC Board helps the executive board guide the Fraternity, and helps the chapter maintain focus on its goals. Members of the AVC Board include: President Fred Herberich, Johns Hopkins '91, Recruitment Advisor Jesse Diaz, California-Berkeley '95, Treasurer Ryan Brennan, Northeast Missouri State '95, Historian Michael Green, California-Berkeley '62, and Counselor Jacob Mullins, Yale '05.

About the Campus

Founded in 1868, Berkeley was the first of the University of California's statewide system of 10 campuses. Located in the city of Berkeley near San Francisco, Berkeley has 334 buildings scattered across 1,200 acres of wooded hills. With a deep history of excellence and student activism, Berkeley has become internationally recognized and continues to challenge its students both in the classroom and in the community. Berkeley has over 30 fraternities and 12 sororities, which represent 12% of the undergraduate student population of over 23,000.

Elon Charters in Record Time

BY GREG BARRA
Texas-Austin, '03

Since October, 2005, when Headquarters Staff members Richie Proud, Georgia '02, Lucas Freudenburg, Western Michigan '05, and I recruited the first members of the Elon University SEC, the chapter has been defying convention. This past January, the Fraternity welcomed back the North Carolina Mu chapter at Elon, representing one of the most rapid chartering timelines in recent SigEp memory. The chapter boasts leaders across campus in organizations ranging from student government to varsity and club athletic teams.

The formal banquet was held at the Empire Room in Greensboro, North Carolina, and attended by Fraternity and University officials, chapter alumni and undergraduates. Grand President Archer L. Yeatts, III, U. of Richmond '64, served as installing officer for the re-chartering, with District Governor Billy Maddalon, North Carolina State '90, and Bryan Kaminski, Johns Hopkins '06, assisting. Elon University was represented by Assistant Director of Greek Life Gina Dowell, Director of New Student Orientation Mallory Anderson, and Assistant Chaplain Phillip Smith, North Carolina-Wilmington '94.

Program emcee and Chapter President Matt Lewis, '08, spoke eloquently about the chapter's past growth, current status and future. The chapter has quickly grown to lead the campus in manpower with 63 upperclassmen and freshman recruitment still on the horizon.

Living the Balanced Man Ideal

The chapter's rapid growth can be traced to an aggressive year-round recruitment program focusing on Sound Mind and Sound Body. In the spirit of the Balanced Man Ideals, the chapter has recruited with high standards, demonstrated by their 3.23 GPA, the highest on campus. To emphasize its difference, the chapter has held programming events from a chapter etiquette dinner to a 'What Women Want' seminar. North Carolina Mu received the Elon University Risk Management Award for the chapter with the most responsible programming on campus. The members enjoy maintaining their own sound bodies with group workout sessions and regular intramural competition, where SigEp is currently number one on campus. They are represented on the varsity football team by seniors Travis Wetzel, '07, and Sean Lawson, '07. Juniors Kyle Smith, '08, and George Hall, '08, play on the rugby team.

Alumni and Volunteer Support

The local Alumni and Volunteer Corporation was a crucial part of the chapter's early success. From the start, AVC President Patrick Lane, Georgia '01, worked with the chapter, sharing his experience as a Georgia Delta founding father. On campus, the chapter received mentorship from faculty members Coleman Rich, North Carolina State '76, Balanced Man Steward Lauren Kier and Resident Scholar Kevin Spengler, Murray State '03. Lane spoke for the AVC at the banquet and thanked the Brothers for their hard work and for the opportunity to aid in their development.

New Scholarship Announced

A new chapter scholarship made its debut to recognize the Brother who most closely lives the values of the Ritual. The Lawson Merit Scholarship is named for Brother Sean Michael Lawson, '07, a varsity football athlete and past chapter officer. The current chapter officers wanted to honor his outstanding, consistent contribution to the chapter, and the first recipient was the chapter's current chaplain, Scott Everett Russell, '07. The presentation was a surprise to both Brothers, and honored them for their dedication and ability to balance chapter obligations with other commitments and personal adversity. The award will be presented at future Balanced Man Scholarship banquets.

About the campus

Elon University is a dynamic, private university known for excellent arts and sciences along with outstanding professional programs. The town of Elon is located northwest of Raleigh/Durham. Founded by the Christian Church (now the United Church of Christ) in 1889, Elon sits on a beautiful and historic 575-acre campus supporting its 4,700 undergraduate and 250 graduate students. U.S. News & World Report ranks Elon third among southern master's-level universities, and the Fiske Guide to Colleges ranks it one of 26 "best buy" private universities.

Rainmakers Wanted

BY CHRISTOPHER T. MINNIS
Truman State '00

A “rainmaker” is the person organizations rely on to generate new business. Companies go to great lengths to get and keep them. There is no greater compliment than being called a rainmaker. SigEp rainmakers work hard to find recruitment success because they know selling is important to success in life. You may need to sell someone on joining SigEp, why they should date you, or why your idea is best. The best rainmakers learn this through recruitment.

Rainmakers are assertive, persuasive, and do not take rejection personally. They involve their Brothers and outwork everyone. They don't shy away from challenges and know if we don't get the best, someone else will. Recruitment is your training ground for future success.

Rainmakers know recruitment success builds chapter success. A large, diverse membership affords you a rich experience by involving men from all walks of life. Your fellow Brothers shape your life and prepare you for the world ahead.

Rainmakers do three things:

1. Create clear recruitment standards
2. Actively seek out qualified men
3. Use every tool available

The best recruiters know what they're looking for

Standards are a must. At the University of Nebraska Residential Learning Community (RLC), the chapter and volunteers agree. Chapter Counselor Andrew Faltin, '01, states, “standards help the chapter prioritize who we target. They help us identify those men whose goals will help us achieve success.” The chapter uses the RLC as a competitive advantage. Furthermore, the recruitment team helps potential members see how their goals can be realized through SigEp. “If people know you deliver on what you say, you will attract more men.”

The best recruiters are assertive

Recruitment is not passive. Top recruiters find the best men. The Oregon Alpha RLC at Oregon State University accepts nothing but the best. The first two goals of its recruitment plan are:

1. Recruit men with good character and intelligence (GPA)
2. Be the largest fraternity at Oregon State University

The chapter focuses on what it offers: leadership opportunities, unique Sound Mind and Sound Body programming, and four-year, continuous development. Former Chapter President Michael J. Powers, '07, says, “We're not working hard enough if we have to get you drunk to join our Fraternity.”

The best recruiters use all of their tools

Summer Recruitment • Summer recruitment is rainmaker territory. Recruiters meet members in their homes (with parents) to address how SigEp is different from other fraternities. Imagine eliminating concerns of “how well we know the guy” by having three or more contacts before school starts. When other fraternities ask “what's your major,” and “where are you from,” SigEp has taken him rafting and become his friend. Where do you think he'll join?

Balanced Man Scholarship • The BMS is your best tool to identify high-quality men. The BMS can be used throughout the year. At their best, chapters use in-home interviews with parents and informal contacts like meeting for coffee, lunch, or at an informal event. At their very best, chapters use the awards banquet to recognize outstanding members who live Sound Mind and Sound Body. These

“If people know you deliver on what you say, you will attract more men.” — Andrew Faltin, '01

Brothers show the chapter lives its ideals and helps potential members identify with successful chapter members.

Chapter President Ryan C. Jenkins, Colorado '08, spent his summer using any break to sign up applicants for interviews. Weekends were spent interviewing candidates. Asked why he endured the long hours, he responded, “I have a fierce desire to win. In the end, it was worth it to make life-long friends.”

Yale Meeting Plan • Twice a month, your chapter can shorten its meeting to 30 minutes. Once business is complete, members and top prospects enjoy a Sound Mind or Sound Body event. Some ideas include exchanges with sororities at a local museum, fitness training like boxing or yoga, or attending a lecture by a distinguished faculty member. Your campus has countless opportunities to explore, often, at no cost.

The best recruiters focus on winning

Winning chapters focus attention on what matters most: recruitment standards, dominating the Summer, and recruiting year-round. Winning chapters seek rainmakers because they are the future of SigEp. Ultimately, your ability to sell will guide your success in life. Leave nothing to chance. Be a rainmaker.

SigEp Rainmakers

Using Summer recruitment:

- Illinois Alpha RLC (Illinois) is the largest chapter at the nation's largest Greek community with 160 men and a 3.39 GPA (#2).
- Nebraska Alpha RLC (Nebraska) is a 100-plus chapter with a 3.39 GPA and 15 Buchanan Cups.
- Oklahoma Beta (Oklahoma) is the largest chapter in SigEp (160+) with a 3.13 GPA, #1 on campus.
- Oregon Alpha (Oregon) is 100+ with a 3.17 GPA, #1 on campus.

Using Balanced Man Scholarship:

- Texas Gamma (Texas Christian) has used the BMS to increase chapter size from 62 to 143 men, and improved GPA from 2.88 to 3.12 in five years.
- Colorado SEC (Colorado) recruited the most men in chapter history (34 and largest on campus) to complement the chapter's top campus GPA of 3.5.

Johns Hopkins 2006 Balanced Man Banquet Honors Twenty

Freshmen See SigEp Ideals in Action

BY BRYAN KAMINSKI

Johns Hopkins '06

Sixteen freshmen and four SigEp Brothers were honored at Johns Hopkins University's 2006 Balanced Man Scholarship Banquet held this past November.

The chapter hosted over 75 Brothers, finalists, alumni, professors and administrators in the brand-new Charles Commons Building.

The chapter awarded over $1,500 to those freshmen and Brothers who exemplify the Balanced Man Ideals. Prior to dinner, Paula Burger, Dean of Undergraduate Education, welcomed the group and shared some keys to success at Johns Hopkins. She encouraged students to supplement their experience by getting involved on campus and in the community, to look for organizations that share their values, and to make a difference during their academic careers.

"has given our chapter a great opportunity to identify and recognize the type of men we want to recruit," Bhalla said, "It has given them some great exposure to the values SigEp represents."

The chapter presented Lucas Kelly-Clyne from Wilton, Connecticut, with the $500 first prize scholarship. A high school varsity basketball player, he participated in multiple community service initiatives and serves in student government. The $300 prize went to Chris Reed of Burlington, Vermont. Chris also played high school varsity basketball, and volunteered at the Burlington Humane Society and Planned Parenthood. James Byun, a two-sport varsity athlete from New Brunswick, New Jersey, who logged over 400 hours of community service, won the final award. Thirteen other

"A man's character is his fate." —Heraclitus

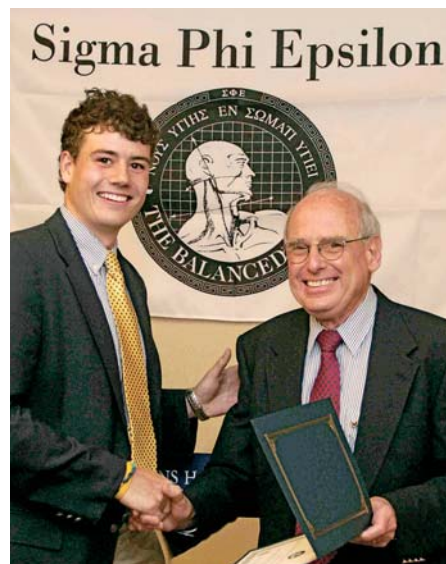

Entrepreneurship and Management Professor Lawrence Aronhime delivered the keynote address to the group and spoke about the importance of living a balanced life as the world becomes more demanding. With so many distractions pulling people in different directions, he explained, the need to focus on creating and maintaining a diverse life experience is not only more important, but also more difficult than ever before.

The Summer planning efforts of BMS Co-Chairs Sameer Bhalla, '09, and Francisco Contijoch, '09, paid off. Bhalla explained that "2006 represented the most competitive applicant pool we've ever had," with applications from over 10% of the Class of 2010. Forty applicants reached the interview stage, and 16 were selected as finalists. By honoring all the finalists, the scholarship finalists were recognized and presented with Barnes and Noble gift cards.

One sophomore, one junior and two senior Brothers were also honored by the Alumni and Volunteer Corporation with a Brotherhood Balanced Man Scholarship. AVC Scholarship Chair Brian Anderson, '05, said, "by recognizing active Brothers for their efforts, the chapter can demonstrate to recruits that the Fraternity is fully committed to its ideals." The chapter honored Francisco Contijoch, '09, David Hinds, '08, Sam Charlton, '07, and Keith Pifko, '07, for their commitments to the University, the community and the chapter.

Contijoch, a 2007 Tragos Quest to Greece Ambassador, is a biomedical engineering major with a 3.9 GPA. He is the chapter's Vice President of Finance, Treasurer of the club soccer team, and volunteers at the JHU Tutorial Project. Hinds has organized the BMS, Dorm Wars, and served as Vice President of Recruitment. He's a member of the University Conduct Board and Executive Chair of the Orientation Program. Charlton is a political science major with a 3.9 GPA who has worked for his Congressman on Capitol Hill, served as Chapter President and Vice President of Programming, and is a member of the Executive Committee for Johns Hopkins' annual Spring Fair. Pifko is the IFC President and a past Vice President of Recruitment. He holds a 3.9 in computer engineering and is a member of Omicron Delta Kappa and Order of Omega.

The Scholarship Program and Banquet had a significant impact on this year's recruitment efforts and helped the chapter add 27 new members this year. It allowed the group to present themselves to people who might never have explored Greek life. Scholarship finalist Nick Arora, '10, said, "without the BMS, I would have never considered joining any fraternity. After attending the banquet, I knew that SigEp would be the only fraternity I would even consider."

Fall Sports Review

Football

Five SigEp collegians were members of teams in post-season bowl games. Quarterback Matt McCoy, '07, saw action for the 10-3 Texas Alamo Bowl squad and linebacker Tommy Watkins, '09, played for the 9-4 Georgia Chick-fil-A Bowl team. The placement holder for the 9-5 Nebraska Cotton Bowl club was Jake Wesch, '09, who threw a touchdown pass on a fake field goal attempt versus Kansas State. He also had 33 kickoffs (including eight touchbacks) for a 61.8 average. Linebacker John Bacon, '09, played in 10 contests for the 7-6 Oregon Las Vegas Bowl team and safety Austin Hall, '09, was a member of the 10-4 Oregon State Sun Bowl squad.

Named to the North-American Interfraternity Conference All-Fraternity All-American first team once again was punter Aaron Horne, '07, of Central Florida. He averaged 39.6 on 44 punts with a best of 57 yards and 16 downed inside the 20 yard line. Teammate Steven Baker, '07, had two starts at linebacker for UCF and had 15 tackles. Kicker Leon Solimani, '07, and linebacker Dom Morais, '08, were members of Vanderbilt squad. Linebacker Kevin Sears, '07, had 26 tackles for Missouri State while battling injuries. He served as president of the chapter last Fall and is the current IFC president.

Starting at offensive tackle for Austin Peay was Brandon Hufstetler, '08, and Robert Eroh, '08, saw action at defensive end for Pennsylvania. A key defensive lineman for Elon was Travis Wetzel, '07, who had 35 tackles, including seven for losses and two sacks. Seeing action as a deep snapper was teammate Sean Lawson, '07. Three-year starting center Mike Shelden, '06, of 6-5 Truman State was named to the All-MIAA second team and ESPN The Magazine's All-District second team. Starting on the offensive line for 6-5 Missouri-Rolla were tight end Bryan Crider, '09, and tackle James Smith, '08. Teammate Chris Norgren, '07, played in seven contests.

Five SigEps were key players for Moravian. Co-captain/linebacker Cliff Garr, '07, led with 82 tackles and recovered three fumbles. Co-captain/lineman Alex Smith-Constantine, '07, was sixth with 46 stops, including a team high nine for losses. Wide receiver Sean Hill, '08, caught 12 balls for 146 yards and returned 13 kickoffs for a 22.5 average. Playing 10 games were wide receiver Allan Fatzinger, '08, and defensive lineman Michael Liccketto, '07. Four offensive linemen saw action for 5-5 Thiel, led by tackle Percy Sweeting, '07, who earned All-PAC honorable mention. Also playing were Evan Johnson, '07, Matt Bannister, '07, and A.J. Parker, '07. Defensive back Mike Schleiden, '08, had 26 tackles for Ohio Wesleyan and defensive lineman Drew Davic, '09, saw action for Westminster.

Dominating the WPI squad again were more than 30 Sig Ep players. Linebacker Matt Boudreau, '09, led with 94 tackles; was Liberty League Defensive Player of the Year, and ECAC Northwest Division III Co-Defensive Player of the Year. Defensive back Adam Haines, '07, posted three interceptions and six pass deflections while ranking third with 48 tackles. Haines has a 3.4 GPA and serves as chapter president.

He was on the Liberty All-Academic first team and All-Liberty second team. Also on the Liberty All-Academic team were quarterback Rob Pantalone, '07, (97 of 195 for 1,349 yards, 241 rushing yards), linebacker Michael Toto, '09, (40 tackles), lineman Brett Ponsler, '09, and defensive back Jon Shoemaker, '09.

Serving as a WPI co-captain was offensive guard Steven Feroli, '07. Running back Garrett Vandette, '06, had a big game versus Mount Ida, rushing for 180 yards and four touchdowns on 16 carries. In six games, he ran for 332 yards. Other offensive standouts were leading rusher George Chyoghly, '07, (91 rushes for 404 yards), quarterback Justin Wells, '09, (30 of 63 for 314 yards), and wide receiver Orry Cummings, '07, (18 receptions for 230 yards). Standouts at defensive back were Andrew Sides, '09, (50 tackles), Dustin Bradway, '07, (47 tackles, co-high four sacks), and Mike Hansen, '07, (three interceptions, 26 tackles). Other good WPI defenders were back Nick Ambrosino, '06, and linebackers Stefan Nicotra, '09, and Chris Norton, '07.

Defensive back Matt Eby, '08, led 10 SigEps on the Tri-State squad. An All-MIAA second team selection, he led with 92 tackles and a 25.7 kickoff average on 25 returns. Also earning All-MIAA second team honors was punter Nate Fitzsimmons, '09, (45 for a 37.6 average, best of 64 yards). Receiving All-MIAA honorable mention were linebacker Joe Curtis, '09, (three interceptions, 54 stops) and offensive lineman Darrin Taylor, '08. Other players for Tri-State included defensive linemen Dan Chase, '08, (49 stops, nine for losses) and Garrett Day, '09, offensive line starter Nicholas Johns, '08, wide receiver Tyler Richardson, '08, and defensive back Joe Oiler, '08.

Cross Country

Kevin Silver, '09, was a key runner in all seven meets for Miami University last Fall and maintains a 3.72 GPA. He placed fourth at the Flyer 5K Challenge (15:37) and Miami Invitational 8K (25:55.18), 17th at the All-Ohio 8K (26:28.6), and 30th at the MAC 8K meet (29:03.50). His season-best 8K time (25:29) was at the Pre-NCAA Invitational and he placed 91st (out of 209 runners) at the NCAA Great Lakes Regional 10K (33:20.46). Nick Flaherty, '09, of Saint Louis had a best 8K time of 27:10.92 at the Greater Louisville Classic. Ryan Herberling, '08, was a member of the Florida International squad.

Five SigEp runners competed for Babson at the 8K Gordon Invitational and NCAA Northeast Division III championship meet. Co-captain Matt Walsh, '07, had a season-best 28:12 clocking in a third place finish at the Gordon meet and placed 29th at the NEWMAC meet. Patrick Socorro, '08, placed eighth at the Gordon meet and Scott

Nick Flaherty, Saint Louis '09

Cormier, '08, finished ninth. Other regulars were Peter Butera, '07, and Robert Chapman, '07. At Illinois Tech, Kyle Koning, '07, placed 45th (29:41.99) at the 8K CCAC meet and was 57th at the NAIA Region VII meet. Teammate Kevin Krupp, '09, was 45th at the CCAC meet and 70th at the NAIA meet. Other runners were Jeremiah Harper, '09, of Baker and Kevin DiGenova, '07, of MIT.

Soccer

Defenseman Isaac Kironde, '08, saw action for the 8-6-5 Cal-Northridge squad and served as IFC president. Defenseman Peter Savidis, '07, started 16 contests for Dartmouth and Matt Perille, '08, was a member of the Yale squad.

Nine SigEps were on the 8-7-3 Truman State team. Named to ESPN The Magazine's Academic All-District team for the third straight year was midfielder Ryan Cravens, '07, a 3.85 student in pre-med/biology. Teammate Matt McCarthy, '07, scored six points and was named to the NSCA All-Central Region third team. Splitting time in goal were Chris Kirkweg, '09, who had a 0.91 goals against average with 24 saves, and Ryan Farrar, '08, who had a 0.75 GAA and 25 saves. Other key Truman State players were Drew Vogt, '08, (15 starts, five points), Dan Gajewski, '07, (17 starts) and Nick Cepicky, '08 (13 games).

Playing for the Clarkson squad were eight SigEps, led by tri-captain David Jette '07, who was on the LOTTO All-Tournament team and the Liberty League All-Academic team. Joining him on the

Peter Savidis, Yale '07

Liberty All-Academic team were Jeff Pappas, '07, Scott Markgraf, '09, and Nick Kulp, '08. Goalie Johnathon Rushing, '08, had a 2.78 goals against average and 47 saves while tri-captain David Hennessey, '07, had 30 saves. Also playing for Clarkson were Scott McDonough, '08, and Andrew Cahill, '09.

Goalie Brad Hofmann, '07, of Monmouth earned All-MWC second team honors after posting a 2.05 goals against average with 135 saves in 1,460:50 minutes of action. He is second in school history with 413 career saves. Teammate Trevor Neff, '08, started 13 games and was on the MWC All-Academic team. Brandon Stacey, '08, was also a regular for Monmouth, starting 15 games. Seeing action for the 13-5-2 Denison Division III playoff club were Andy Leindecker, '07, (18 starts, five points), Aaron Libman, '07, (20 games), and Allen Pestotnik, '09. Other players included Jon Tilles, '07, of Tufts, Al Zachos, '07, and Will Stephens, '09, of Huntingdon, Derek Rutledge, '07, and Michael Ruess, '07, of Kentucky Wesleyan, and Illinois Tech goalies Nathan Woods, '07, and Ryan Yartzak, '09.

Moving into the professional soccer ranks is Tom Hicks, Texas '68, who became co-owner of the Liverpool Football Club, one of England's most storied soccer franchises. Already involved with pro sports as owner of the Texas Rangers baseball club and Dallas Stars hockey club, he purchased 50% of Liverpool FC, with Montreal Canadiens owner George Gillett, Jr. purchasing the other 50%. In addition to the franchise purchase, the Hicks-Gillett groups plans to break ground on a 60,000 seat stadium in April.

Distance Runner Kevin Silver, Miami U. (Ohio) '09, is already making an impact for the Miami (Ohio) track team. He finished fourth at the Dayton Invitational in the 10K, third at the Miami Invitational, and 20th at the Penn State Spike Shoe Invitational. Even more impressive is Silver's 3.72 cumulative GPA. "It has been a little bit difficult to juggle everything, but at the same time, I've been able to become more efficient with my schoolwork, and I have had to stay focused more in the process which has helped me excel in all my activities," Silver says.

Despite his hectic schedule, Silver decided to join SigEp his sophomore year just after Winter break. He felt SigEp and the Balanced Man Program were a perfect fit into his schedule as a scholar athlete. "I joined SigEp in the first place because I felt accepted by the members of Ohio Eta. I remember meeting another Brother during recruitment who was an athletic trainer; I knew he had dealt with much of the same time constraints as me. After talking with him, I was convinced that SigEp was the right place for me and that I could fit it into my busy schedule. Nevertheless, I felt the focus the Fraternity had on athletics would cater to my needs." Silver plans to stay active in the chapter and has enjoyed his new member experience.

Chapter President, Football Team Captain Leads on and off the Field

Adam Haines, WPI '08, lives a very balanced lifestyle. After looking at bigger schools like Virginia Tech and Purdue, Haines was persuaded to attend WPI by football coaches at the school. Once he arrived on campus, Haines realized many of his friends on the football team were also members of Sigma Phi Epsilon. "I had a perception of what fraternities were all about," Haines says. "I never thought it would be for me, but after getting involved, I loved every minute of it."

As a junior, Haines was elected chapter president. Not long after, he was also selected as captain of the football team. "It has been a good experience for me," Haines says. "The situations are different (football team and fraternity), but in terms of leadership, I handle a lot of it the same way." He was injured in his sophomore year and looks forward to playing in the coming season fully recovered.

Haines has excelled in the classroom as well. He's majoring in electrical and computer engineering, earning a 3.40 cumulative GPA. He also plans to obtain a masters degree. "I have learned to write things down," Haines jokes. "The Fraternity has taught me a lot about time management and staying organized," he adds.

Haines also says he learned a lot at the Carlson Leadership Academy this past February. "Talking with presidents of other chapters was very interesting," Haines says, "I picked up a lot of new ideas and new techniques on how to handle things."

Haines and the rest of the Massachusetts Beta chapter earned Phi Beta Kappa Wheelhouse honors at CLA as well.

SigEp Triathlete Competes Internationally

High Blood Pressure Pushed Him to Get Fit

BY GAY-LYNN CARPENTER, Editor

Mike Sawa, Ball State '73, never imagined that he would be a member of Team USA competing in an international triathlon. Yet, Brother Sawa swam 2.5 miles, biked 75 miles and ran 19 miles in under ten hours to finish fourth out of nine from the United States in his 55-59 age group. The grueling Long-Distance World Triathlon Championships took place last November in Australia and included athletes from 24 nations. Despite rigorous qualifying criteria, 50 of 600 participants were forced out of the race as they faced a mountainous course and extreme weather conditions.

Athletic Abilities Began Modestly

Sawa, a teacher in Greenwood, Indiana, classified himself as a mediocre athlete in his younger years, running hurdles in high school and playing multiple intramural sports in college. In his mid-twenties, he started running to improve his physical condition. Imagine his shock to discover, at age 33, that his blood pressure was dangerously high. He continued to train, focused on a healthier diet and began running marathons. Eventually, he ran the Boston Marathon in 1990 and 1991. Sawa finally hit on the right combination of medication, exercise and proper diet to keep his blood pressure in check. Read more about high blood pressure on page 13.

Sawa made the jump from marathons to triathlons when an injury forced him to find alternatives to running. He tried swimming and found he was barely able to go 35 yards. The next challenge emerged, and Sawa's competitive nature kicked in. Soon his races escalated to longer triathlons, including three Ironman distance races. To date, Mike has competed in over 10 marathons and 30 triathlons.

Healthy Lifestyle Comes Out of Chasing Physical Challenge

While Sawa is grateful for his health and good blood pressure reading, it's the next physical challenge, the next race, that makes him push himself ever faster, ever harder. "I tell my students that every time you challenge yourself, you can take on the next challenge more easily. This habit will provide an invaluable life skill in later years." And, he stresses that he didn't start out with the goal of completing a triathlon. "I never dreamed I would do an Ironman distance race. It was one step at a time." After each race he wondered how he could go a bit faster or a bit farther.

Where did that appetite for tackling challenges come from? "When I was a SigEp, we didn't say 'I can't.' We were very competitive with everything we did, and everyone strived to do his best." Brother Sawa valued the brotherly support, no matter the circumstances, and his experience cemented his determination to face challenges and follow through. What makes him keep at it? "Twenty years ago the question I was determined to answer was 'Can I do this?' In 2007, the question is 'Can I still do this?'"

The answer is: yes, he can! Sawa gets a lot of support from his SigEp Brothers and his wife of 35 years, Nancy, to keep pushing. Even today, a week doesn't go by without talking to one of his Brothers from Ball State. "I know I can call any one of my Brothers, and he would be right there for me if I needed him."

But he also gives a lot of himself. He sees his greatest contribution to SigEp as supplying the chapter with "one of its best presidents, my son, Brian Sawa, Ball State '99."

Nebraska New Member GPA Exceeds 3.5

BY DEREK METHER
Nebraska '08

When the University of Nebraska was accredited as a Residential Learning Community (RLC), we all knew some big changes were going to take place. We renovated the chapter house, but we knew that the biggest changes weren't about the building. At Nebraska Alpha, we believe that the RLC is a way of life that transcends the physical chapter facility and is aimed at developing the Balanced Man. An RLC is an accredited program based on the residential living-learning concept. Its goal is to augment the fraternal experience with an academic focus beyond the classroom.

With this ideal in place, we devised an academic program second to none. Flexible study times and days allow members to participate in study hours when it best fits their schedule. Grade checks with Faculty Fellows are conducted three times a semester to identify potential academic issues before they become problems. Most importantly, we implemented a system of rewards so that new members could receive tangible benefits as a result of their successes. This program helped our bright young group of recruited new members achieve a 3.57 GPA for the Fall semester.

This success reflects high recruitment standards that bring in members who have the most potential to excel with our developmental programming, and expectations for leadership and involvement on campus and in the community.

Developing the RLC at Nebraska Alpha has been one of the chapter's most dramatic undertakings in its 95-year history. It took all of the Fraternity's stakeholders: the national headquarters, local alumni, the Alumni Volunteer Corporation Board (AVC), campus faculty and staff, as well as all of the undergraduate executive officers and members. Special thanks go to Faculty Fellow Dr. Deb Mullen, Chapter Counselor Andrew Faltin, '01, and Former RLC Vice President Mark Dolton, '08. Nebraska Alpha's amazing web of support is the key to fostering great academic success.

High Blood Pressure: A Question of Control

BY FRANK BUTTERFIELD
Southern California '83

Hypertension, high blood pressure, occurs when the heart produces too much force as it pumps blood through your system. The increased pressure can damage arterial walls and the heart itself. The higher your blood pressure, the greater your chance of a heart attack, stroke, congestive heart failure, kidney disease, and possibly dementia.

Track your Blood Pressure Over Time

How do you know if you have high blood pressure? You probably don't, unless your doctor has diagnosed it. A diagnosis may need to be based on more than a one-time snapshot of your blood pressure. Have your blood pressure checked a number of times in different environments to give you an accurate indication of your readings over time.

Blood pressure is measured with a cuff that applies external pressure to identify the point where your body produces enough force to push blood past the restriction. Normal blood pressure is about 120mmHg/80mmHg. The first number represents the pressure in your cardiovascular system during a contraction of your heart, and the second number is the pressure when the system is at rest, or between beats. Hypertension occurs when the pressure is above 140mmHg/90mmHg. When the first number is between 120 and 139 or the second number is between 80 and 89, this is called prehypertension, and it indicates hypertension is likely without lifestyle changes.

Blood pressure is adversely affected by sedentary lifestyle, excess weight/body fat, smoking, and high fat foods. Elevated blood pressure was considered a middle age condition, but its prevalence in younger adults has increased as high fat diets and lower activity levels mean more cases of prehypertension and hypertension.

Don't Let Hypertension Hold You Back

If you know you have prehypertension or hypertension, you can take action to reduce your numbers. Mike Sawa, Ball State '73, learned he had high blood pressure at the age of 33. Changes in lifestyle allowed him to proactively manage his blood pressure. He took up running to increase his activity level and reduce body fat. Eventually he combined his fitness regimen and the right medication to maintain healthy blood pressure readings over time. Sawa recently competed in the World Triathlon Championship in Australia, representing the US in the 55 – 59 age group. See page 11.

Getting your blood pressure checked regularly is an excellent way to manage your cardiovascular health. If you are diagnosed with prehypertension or hypertension, get active. Low level aerobic activity like walking, swimming or cycling can produce significant positive results. Decrease the amount of fat in your diet, especially saturated fats and trans-fats. Lose some weight. Throw away your salt shaker. And, if you smoke, stop.

50th Conclave Convenes in Atlanta

The 50th Grand Chapter Conclave is here. From August 8 - 12, 2007, over 1,400 Sigma Phi Epsilon Brothers will travel in caravans, by airplane, and on trains to take part in the ultimate SigEp experience. The theme for this historic meeting of the Grand Chapter is "SigEp on My Mind." This biennial gathering brings together hundreds who have a passion for the organization including undergraduates, academics, Fortune 500 executives, all with different jobs, different volunteer roles, different history with SigEp.

When SigEp takes over the Grand Hyatt in downtown Atlanta, you'll be a stone's throw from The Georgia Aquarium, the world's largest aquarium, the Coca-Cola headquarters, as well as CNN, the Atlanta Braves and so much more.

What's on the Agenda?

The Conclave will offer you plenty to celebrate. Chapters will be awarded the prestigious Buchanan Cup for Chapter Excellence. We will celebrate the 100th anniversary of our Fraternity's Ritual, first adopted by the Grand Chapter at the Conclave in 1907, when cars were scarce and roads were dirt. While the men are busy setting policy for the national organization, spouses and guests will enjoy a tour of historic homes, shopping in Atlanta's swanky Buckhead district and a trip to local Atlanta attractions.

Sound Mind and Sound Body will be on display this Summer, and there is something for everyone. Runners can participate in the YouthAIDS 5K race. Rod Raymond, Arizona State '87, and Frank Butterfield, Southern California '83, world renowned physical trainers, along with doctors and physical therapists, are ready to challenge you to develop your plan to build your healthiest body. Listen to Brother Charles Engle, North Carolina '84, recount his trek across the Sahara desert and inspire you to dream. You can attend education sessions ranging from recruitment skills to resume writing. Perennial Conclave speakers Mom Nonnie and Judge Mitch are sure to delight the audience with their conversations on etiquette and risk management.

This awesome experience culminates in the Alumni Awards Banquet on Saturday, August 11. The Fraternity awards the Citation for excellence in business, and the highest honor given to alumni volunteers, the Order of the Golden Heart.

Friends Will Be There

The Conclave is a great opportunity to reconnect with your old friends and create new friendships among the Brothers and guests who gather from across the 50 states. Whether you graduated 20 years ago, or just went to your first Carlson Leadership Academy, SigEps of any age will feel right at home.

What You Should Bring

Business casual clothes, a coat and tie for Ritual and the alumni awards banquet, some spending money for meals not covered by registration fees, and a camera to take LOTS of pictures. Be prepared to take home memories that will last a lifetime. It's amazing to watch your chapter win its first Buchanan Cup, or be a part of the Conclave Stand Down as you find yourself sitting next to a man attending his 25th Conclave.

How You Register

Registration fees are $395 for volunteers and guests, $335 for undergraduates. The fee includes the alumni receptions, the Balanced Man Celebration, the Educational Foundation Luncheon, the Brotherhood Luncheon, all of the educational sessions and the Alumni Awards Banquet.

It's not too soon to book! Register online at www.sigep.org by July 7 to avoid an additional $50 late registration fee. You can also call Stacy Dudley at (804) 353-1901, ext. 316. Book your hotel reservations from the SigEp website or by calling the Hyatt Regency Atlanta directly at (404) 577-1234.

Do you need a re-charge of your SigEp battery? Now is the time; Atlanta is the place. I'll see you there!

Ludacris Talks Coast-to-Coast about YouthAIDS

BY JAMES SILK, George Washington '07, AND BEN HEJNA, UCLA '08

At the 2005 Conclave, Sigma Phi Epsilon and YouthAIDS agreed to a ten-year partnership, engaging chapters across the country in the fight against HIV/AIDS. By 2007, 75 chapters from every region had hosted educational events to raise awareness and funds for more than 60 YouthAIDS country programs worldwide. SigEp raised over $215,000 between 2004 and 2006 for YouthAIDS.

This past Fall, YouthAIDS launched the "Kick Me" Campaign. Sponsored by Virgin and Levi's, the "Kick Me" Campaign was a radical yet easy way for college students to become involved with YouthAIDS. Youth Ambassadors Emmy Rossum and Ludacris promoted the campaign, which was based on the prank of sticking a "Kick Me" sign on another's back without their knowledge. It symbolizes the 90% of those infected with HIV/AIDS who may not know it.

Ludacris spent the week leading up to World AIDS Day (December 1) traveling from coast to coast, visiting UCLA, Northwestern, Columbia, and George Washington. Prior to Ludacris' visit to George Washington on World AIDS Day, the District of Columbia Alpha chapter decided to sponsor the event. With help from family, friends, sororities, and the Kiehl's College Challenge, this chapter alone raised $30,000 for the campaign. They opened Ludacris' event to the public, offering free tickets to those who registered for the "Kick Me" Campaign. Over 400 students, professors, press members, and community leaders attended this open forum. One in 20 Washington, DC, residents is HIV positive. George Washington's commitment to the cause is far from over. Next year, the chapter expects to raise even more for YouthAIDS.

At the UCLA chapter, members of Kappa Kappa Gamma and Alpha Phi sororities were also invited to the discussion. Ludacris' mood conveyed the seriousness of the AIDS issue while welcoming questions and open dialogue.

Ludacris emphasized that safe sex and the use of protection are essential. He emphatically stated that unprotected sex is not the cool thing to do and is very dangerous. This message was particularly effective coming from Ludacris because of its contrast to the reputation of the rap industry for promoting promiscuity and carelessness. Students were impressed that Ludacris had risen above stereotypes and was advocating the opposite behavior of many of his peers.

SMU SigEp Stands Out in Dallas Clean Up Efforts

BY TREY WYDYSH
U. of Richmond '07

SigEp and other fraternities at Southern Methodist took time out to lend a hand with trash pick-up at their Community Service Day in January. They spent the day picking up trash in Dallas to help out a local, non-profit arts organization, La Reunion. One Brother in particular,

Gregory Standerfer, '06, was commended by the organization's executive director for his hard work and commitment to helping clean up trash throughout the community. "He kept working and made real headway on an illegal dumping site that has been difficult for us to deal with for some time," Sarah Jane Semrad wrote in an e-mail to The Journal, asking that he be commended.

"The SigEp chapter at SMU tries to represent something greater than the average frat guy," Standerfer said. "I just hope I represented SigEp well." And represent SigEp well he did. Standerfer was commended for hauling tires for three hours.

"The other guys got tired after an hour," he said, "but I knew we could get a lot more done and get the place cleaned up nicer, so I kept pushing it." And that, Brothers, is the definition of diligence, one tire at a time.

Pennsylvania Undergraduate Publishes Politics Book for Young People

BY TREY WYDYSH
U. of Richmond '07

It's not every day that you hear that a fellow SigEp has had a book published, let alone one who's still in college. But, Taylor Buley, Pennsylvania '07, has done just that. His book, The Fresh Politics Reader, is described on its jacket as "a libertarian tool for seeing past the stale politics of statism," and the subtitle describes its aim, which is to make "current events and public affairs relevant to young Americans."

Available on Amazon.com, the Reader is thought-provoking and provides an original perspective on the politics of government today while urging readers to actively stand up for their own opinions. The language is easy accessible and gives the reader insight into Buley's original perspective about key political issues such as affirmative action, abortion and the death penalty.

The Journal talked with Buley to learn about his book and his writing process.

Journal: What inspired and compelled you to write a book about politics?

Buley: I got in contact with my publisher initially by pestering him about putting out a book that targeted young Americans. I complained that politicians generally ignore the opinions and interests of young people, and he responded to me by asking if I wanted to write it.

J: What targeted approaches or ideas did you use to appeal to young people?

TB: Forced to compete with television and the Internet, most publishers are terrified of targeting books to young people. The truth is that they just don't know how to reach them. One of the ways I tried to appeal to a younger audience was by writing in self-contained, digestible chapters. You can pick up the book, look at the index and start it at whatever chapter interests you the most. That way, you can come away with relevant information even if you don't have time to read the whole book.

J: What kind of responses are you getting from the book?

TB: I have to admit that the response has been surprising. I'm finding a lot of older people are reading my book. People keep telling me that more people should be doing what I do.

J: How did you manage to get this done while you were still in school?

TB: I wrote the first 250-page draft during the month after exams, I went abroad and studied in Prague for two months while my publisher worked on the manuscript, then came back and used my final month of summer vacation to edit my draft. It was a fun summer project.

J: What are the key ideas you hope readers will take away from your book?

TB: The biggest theme I hope people take away is not so much the content, but rather the approach to politics. In a democracy, you have to be a constant skeptic. I want others to expect a better life—better government and better representation.

J: What's next for you?

TB: I'm not sure. All I know is I graduate in May, and that I'm darn excited to see what happens next. As with my writing, although I don't know how the chapters go, I generally know how the story is going to end. I'll get a job, buy a house and fight totalitarianism on the side.

Brother Buley's book is available on Amazon.com.

Three Brothers Tough it out Together at the Marine Corps Marathon

BY TREY WYDYSH
U. of Richmond '07

Three Brothers at Carnegie Mellon University ran in the Marine Corps Marathon in October, in Washington, D.C. Eric Chang, '08, Alex Hu, '07, and Travis Brier, '07, decided to train for the marathon after Hu challenged the chapter at Carnegie Mellon to strive for excellence in Sound Body.

"Running was inspired by the simple aspiration to do something that so few people complete," Brier said. "Proving it to yourself and being able to have 'bragging rights' seemed like large factors as well."

Chang, Hu and Brier began to train on their own in Summer, 2006, and then trained together once the Fall semester started. "Upon returning to school, we were able to do more organized workouts together. In the weeks leading up to the marathon, we made an effort to do longer distance workouts together weekly," Chang said.

Brier added that he, Hu and Chang ran seven to nine miles when they had the free time, and also added a 13-mile run about once a week, even though they agreed that it was hard to find time to consistently train and prepare for the race.

"Finding workout times where we could all get together and run for long distances was extremely difficult," Brier said.

Hu said running with the other Brothers helped to break the monotony of the long training runs. They motivated each other and helped each other prepare, especially when Brier injured himself a week before the competition.

When Brier got hurt, he was "tempted to just watch" Chang said. "However, seeing the excitement of the other two runners and the support of all the other Brothers who traveled to watch made him ultimately decide to try and run the race."

All three completed the marathon, cheered on by their chapter Brothers. They felt it was such a rewarding experience that they plan on making it a yearly event. Chang said, "we've even inspired a couple others to start training for it!"

Kansas State Puts Punch in Sound Body

BY TREY WYDYSH
U. of Richmond '07

SigEp has always been known for building great leaders, but the Brothers of Kansas Beta (Kansas State) might be helping the Fraternity build the next Boxing Heavy-weight Champion of the World. The Brothers spent a Saturday at a boxing gym as part of a working wellness program established within the chapter. Both the program and the trip to the gym were organized by Sound Mind and Sound Body coordinator Brett Bartholomew, '08.

"The world is beginning to realize the true value of physical fitness and good nutrition," he said. Brother Bartholomew, eager to spark excitement in his newly created wellness program, decided to hold monthly Sound Body events for the chapter, and called the owner of a local boxing gym he met while taking a boxing course at Kansas State.

"I decided to see if the owner would be interested in putting participants in the Sound Body event through a boot camp style boxing workout," he said. The owner readily agreed, and in December, 15 Brothers went to the gym to take on "boxing boot camp" with determination. The workout consisted of intense abdominal work, working with heavy bags, calisthenics and various punching styles. The gym was set up in multiple stations so that the Brothers were always moving and frequently changing their activities.

"While one group was jumping rope, the other was hitting the heavy bags; while one group was doing abdominal work and other forms of core training, the other was doing polometrics, a type of exercise that calls for explosive movements to develop muscular power, such as medicine ball exercises," Bartholomew said.

Brothers who participated enjoyed it immensely and gave the trip rave reviews at the following chapter meeting. Other Brothers were prompted to inquire about the next event. "The reaction and positive feedback shared with the rest of the chapter regarding the event was priceless," he said. Bartholomew came up with a great way to offer his chapter a fresh, challenging perspective on staying in shape and perhaps a newfound respect for the sport of boxing.

Tennessee Zeta Collects Donations for the Homeless

BY TREY WYDYSH
U. of Richmond '07

The Brothers of the Tennessee Zeta Chapter at Lambuth University recently made a decision to go homeless. The one-night event was part of a brotherhood effort to raise awareness and donations for the homeless of Jackson, Tennessee, and members spent the night in cardboard boxes in the parking lot of the Northside United Methodist Church in Jackson.

"The original idea for 'SPE Box City,' our homelessness event, was brought up by our Vice President of Membership Development as a service/experiential learning event for the chapter," said Vice President of Communications Justin Luzader, '09. The idea took off as they secured the location and promoted the event at Lambuth as well as to the local media.

"It was a great cause," Luzader said. "It offered the brotherhood an opportunity to experience the life of someone else, and because of the publicity the event received, we were given the opportunity to obliterate the image that so many people attribute to fraternities."

According to the Jackson Sun, Brothers arrived at the church at 5 p.m. on January 26, and stayed until 9 a.m. the next day. The Brothers also asked the community for donations such as food, clothing and sleeping bags for them to use at night and to be given to Jackson's needy.

"The event was quite successful in both turnout and donations received," Luzader said. "The chapter turnout was nearly 100 percent, and the participation of the community was also quite significant. We received over 1,000 articles of clothing that were donated to the Regional Inter-Faith Association for the local poor and homeless."

However, Luzader added, there were challenges. "The hardest part of doing this was definitely withstanding the extreme cold of a January night in Jackson," he said. The Brothers had an eye-opening and rewarding experience by gaining a new perspective and respect of the hardships endured by the homeless.

"The most rewarding part of the event was the way we felt after it ended," Luzader said. "It was after we finished counting and sorting all those donations. Immediately, every moment of bearing the cold was justified by an amazing feeling of accomplishment and knowledge that we had been able to make a difference."

Chapter president John McGreger, '08, said "we definitely want to make this a yearly event, and hopefully expand it into something truly great."

Do You Want to be a Resident Scholar?

A number of chapters across the country are looking for Resident Scholars (RS). These Brothers are graduate students at the school and reside within a chapter facility, providing undergraduate members with daily mentorship. The RS supports the development of undergraduate chapter members in the areas of Academics & Leadership. In particular, they offer scholarship programming, mentoring in leadership and development, and chapter support. Each resident scholar position includes room and board and may also include a monthly stipend depending on the institution. Positions for RS are available at the following schools:

- Alabama
- Iowa State
- SUNY-Buffalo

Graduate students interested in exploring a Resident Scholar position can e-mail Brian Warren, Virginia '04, Director of Residential Learning Communities at brian.warren@sigep.net.

Davidson Symphony Event Offers a More Sophisticated Night Out

BY ALEX LOCKE
Davidson '10

The members of North Carolina Epsilon at Davidson College

The members of North Carolina Epsilon at Davidson College exchanged their lettered shirts for ties earlier this month to enjoy a night at the symphony. A simple show of hands before the event revealed that nearly a third had never been to a symphony. In a reception room at the concert hall, the Brothers and pledges got a brief summary of the concert from a musician with the symphony, Mr. David Mills, father of JD Mills, Davidson '09, before enjoying Brahms' Violin Concerto. The symphony expedition marked the end of the 'Brotherhood 101' lesson of the week: formal dress, manners, and etiquette.

"The classiness topic is a staple of our pledging process, but this year we wanted to present the pledges and Brothers with an opportunity to put their lessons to work," said Mike Parsons, Davidson '08. The opportunity to build on the Sound Mind and Sound Body principle proved a success. Leah Swaney, date of Henry van Wagenberg, Davidson '07, said that her "trip to the symphony demonstrated that SigEp at Davidson takes pride in molding college men into thoughtful, mature adults. The women were thrilled to be on the arms of such cultured gentlemen!"

The night demonstrated brotherhood at its best. In a new and perhaps less comfortable setting, our Brothers provided us with familiarity and security.

Brother's Diving Injury Spurs Chapter to Action

BY TREY WYDYSH
U. of Richmond '07

When Trenton Baier, Northwest Missouri State '05, was paralyzed after a diving accident in the Summer of 2005, the Brothers of the chapter immediately looked for ways to help their fellow Brother. They took on fundraising and lobbying to do it.

The chapter held a benefit concert for Brother Baier. "The reception was overwhelming," said Nathan Young, Northwest Missouri State '07. "Faculty, greeks, non-greeks, everyone came out for Trenton and for the good music." Young said that the benefit concert was one of the biggest events a fraternity has held at Northwest Missouri State. "With that and other events, we raised around $3,000 in a semester" to help Baier pay for medical bills.

In addition to raising money, Young and Baier also did work for the Missouri Coalition for Lifesaving Cures, proponents of Amendment 2 in Missouri, which allows researchers to use embryonic stem cells to find cures for life threatening diseases. Young and Baier collected 250,000 signatures over six months to put the amendment on the ballot and encouraged voters to support it.

The Amendment passed in November. Young said that the most rewarding thing about the whole experience was helping out a fellow Brother in a time of need. Baier was also grateful for all the help with the campaign and the concert. "The chapter has been great," he said.

"We all have people in our lives who we are closer to than others," Young said. "Fraternities are no exception. What is different with a fraternity is that, when one of us is in need, we know that our Brothers will be there to lift us up. Trenton was in my pledge class. We took an oath when we joined SigEp, and that meant I would be there for them no matter what. And I know they would be there for me."

Baier now lives in Kansas City with another Brother, and he keeps in touch with his Brothers who are available to help him out. "Everyone is staying involved," he said.

Young has been shaped by helping Baier. "Trenton has shown me not to give up. I don't know if I could be as strong if I was in his situation," he said. "You have to have an attitude base of resilience. People often say 'never give up,' and move on. Trenton lives it."

"Be kind, for everyone you meet is fighting a hard battle."

—Plato

emphasized the opportunities to "seek out men who have lived the Fraternity's principles in their lives," and consider initiating them as Renaissance Brothers in your chapter.

Launched in 1984, the Renaissance of Brotherhood Program was designed to help chapters tap into the fine examples of men in their communities and bring them into the brotherhood, thus broadening the meaning and impact of the Fraternity Ritual. Renaissance Brothers exemplify the values of the Fraternity and bring their own commitment to brotherhood to the chapters they serve. Renaissance Brother candidates may already be involved in the Fraternity, and they also serve as ambassadors to the community to help break down stereotypes about fraternities and connect the chapter more closely to the communities beyond their campus.

As your chapters look for candidates for Renaissance Brothers consider the letter BeauJames Hedin, Montana State '06, shared on Renaissance Brother Dr. Frank Seitz, initiated in 2003. Get suggestions for how to find and initiate Renaissance Brothers from Patrick Murphrey, Christopher Newport '05. Both are on the next page.

Renaissance Brothers

Connect Chapters and Communities

Grand President Yeatts and all SigEp Brothers:

After reading the Winter, 2006, edition of The Journal, I felt charged to express the gratitude which the Montana State SEC chapter feels towards Renaissance Brother Dr. Frank Seitz. It is a privilege to express my own thanks to Brother Seitz and introduce him to the national Fraternity. Dr. Seitz is a cornerstone of Sigma Phi Epsilon at Montana State University. Since Dr. Seitz joined Sigma Phi Epsilon in 2003, he has shown himself to be the epitome of the Balanced Man.

Aside from being one of the leading Forensic and Clinical Psychologists in Montana, he has been featured on 60 Minutes, is an Adjunct Professor at Montana State University and an Adjunct Clinical Faculty member at the University of Washington School of Medicine. He has published dozens of professional articles and several books, including The Collar and Behavioral Medicine Made Ridiculously Easy. Dr. Seitz is involved in every aspect of the Fraternity, including his present role as the chapter counselor. He has been the keynote speaker at many annual events including almost every BMS ceremony in recent history. His home is the site for annual elections, where he and his beautiful wife, Adele, make every Brother feel at home. This generosity fosters an environment where Brothers become excited for the ceremony about to take place. He is also a vital member of the chapter's AVC board as an advisor and is a wealth of knowledge in regard to chapter finances and expenditures.

Besides serving a multi-faceted role within the Fraternity, Dr. Seitz was a personal mentor to me during my undergraduate years, and he continues to serve this role for many active Brothers today. Dr. Seitz is the type of man you can bring any problem to, big or small. As a past chapter president, I sought the counsel of Dr. Seitz on many chapter initiatives. His life-long experiences helped to guide me and the Fraternity to continued success. I was also able to engage Dr. Seitz on personal issues and seek advice on any obstacles that may have come my way. His consistent, warm words and optimism spill into all who are around him. Dr. Seitz instills motivation, knowledge and love in whoever he comes into contact with. He greets everyone with a warm smile, a friendly handshake, and lives are changed because of him. He continues to shape our community, our lives, and our Fraternity. Brother Seitz is the embodiment of what it means to be a Balanced Man and a Brother of Sigma Phi Epsilon. I want to thank him for his continued support and commitment. We are better men because of him.

Faternally,

BeauJames Hedin, Montana State '06

Bringing on Renaissance Brothers

BY PATRICK MURPHREY

Christopher Newport '05

Christopher Newport has initiated five Renaissance Brothers, and we've come up with a workable approach to bringing them into our chapter. Hopefully these tips will encourage you to tap into the great men in your community who would make our Brothers proud.

1. Hold a meeting with the potential Brother and several prominent members of the chapter and/or AVC about the offer of membership. Inform him of the duties and responsibilities of membership just like you would a potential recruit.
2. If the candidate accepts, complete the Renaissance of Brotherhood Membership form (available at www.sigep.org) and return to headquarters with the $25 initiation fee. I recommend that the chapter or AVC pay this fee. Then, headquarters will send the chapter its membership materials for the new Brother (LROB, card, certificate, etc.)
3. Next you have two options:

One-Day Option: Set a date with the candidate to perform the entire Ritual in one day (including the Declaration, Sigma, Phi, Epsilon, and Brother Mentor Rites of Passage). I recommend that you spend time with the candidate beforehand to teach him about the Fraternity. You could also do this after the Rites. This helps Brothers who have limited time.

Extended Ritual Option: Perform the Declaration and Sigma ROP as soon as possible. Then assign a mentor (a senior undergraduate or AVC member) who will work with the new Brother to help them learn more about the Fraternity (history, leadership continuum, etc). As their understanding increases, schedule and conduct the other Rites. This approach aligns with the Balanced Man program and can help the new Brother understand the development program better.

The most important objective is to make them feel welcome and show them the great opportunities the Fraternity has to offer at this stage in their life. The Fraternity will reap the benefits of that effort as these exemplary men begin to invest in your chapter and your Brothers.

Brother Named to 2008 Space Mission to Repair Hubble

BY GAY-LYNN CARPENTER, Editor

Drew Feustel, Purdue '89, will join four crew members on a $900 million mission to repair and enhance the Hubble Space telescope in 2008. The mission will enable the orbiting observatory to continue to "return amazing information about the universe back to us," he says. Brother Feustel's role? Spacewalker. He will be one of the astronauts floating in space to execute adjustments and repairs once the telescope is retrieved with the Shuttle's robotic arm and docked in the cargo bay.

Prior to joining NASA in 2000, Feustel was a geophysicist for Exxon in Houston and worked in the mining industry in Canada, where he put his degrees in earth science, geophysics and seismology to good use. When Feustel decided to move beyond the earth's atmosphere, he applied to the space program, along with 3,500 others, for one of five open slots.

"They do consider your experience and education," Feustel explains, "but they also have to consider your capacity to interface with and operate spacecraft hardware and vehicles." His lifelong interest in speeding down the street in everything from go-carts to motorcycles finally materialized in his day job, as Feustel and his crewmates fly in T-38 Air Force training jets to add muscle to their spatial orientation skills. Right now, Feustel is spending time in the "Neutral Buoyancy Lab," a giant pool that helps the astronauts experience weightlessness through the perfect combination of water and pressurized space suits. Practice in operating the shuttle machinery and rugged wilderness trips to bond the crew together in harsh conditions round out Feustel's training for the mission.

Remembering his days at Purdue with fondness and appreciation, Feustel thinks the most important element of his SigEp experience is the "great, lasting friendships I made while I was there. Also, striving for the top was really important to me, and everyone was really focused and driven."

Feustel's journey to the top is about to break the sound barrier, and he is excited about "the thrill of riding a rocket ship into space, which is a real privilege." But he considers it even more important to "bring everyone else along for the ride, to help them see what this really means to the world." Good luck, Brother Feustel. We'll see you in space!

"To the man who is afraid, everything rustles."

SigEp Sportswriter Explores High School Wrestling in First Book

BY LAURA WEISIGER

If you're a sports fan, there's a good chance you have read the work of a SigEp, Mark Kreidler, Oklahoma '82. Kreidler is a sports journalist who has written for the San Diego Union-Tribune and the Sacramento Bee as well as for ESPN.com. His latest book, Four Days to Glory: Wrestling With the Soul of the American Heartland, has received praise in various book reviews, including Entertainment Weekly and Sports Illustrated. In Four Days to Glory, Kreidler examines the intense world of high school wrestling, focusing on two young athletes from Iowa. The Washington Post said, "Any high school wrestling fan would raise Kreidler's arm in triumph" after reading the book.

Kreidler has kept in touch with his Brothers since graduating despite a busy work schedule. "One of the real treats of the book coming out has been getting in touch with a bunch of my Oklahoma Beta Brothers," he says. "We stay in contact loosely, and the book has given us a fun excuse to get caught up." Kreidler, who most recently wrote for the Sacramento Bee, has won numerous awards for his writing.

Alumnus Named Kentucky Derby Designer

BY STEVEN DORSEY
American '09

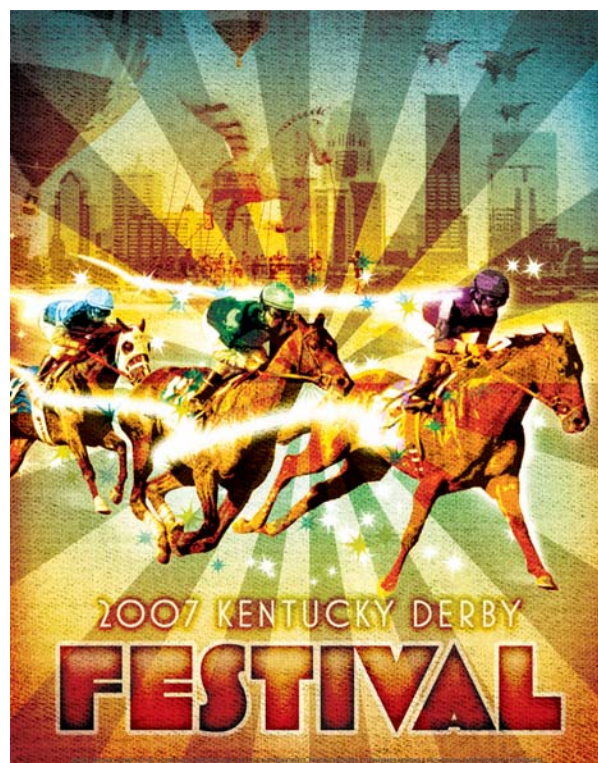

The race is finally over for one SigEp alumnus. The Kentucky Derby Festival recently named Donovan Sears, U. of Louisville '01, as this year's artist of its annual official poster. His work was selected out of many other submissions. "It's quite an honor to do this and be a part of a group of artists like this," Sears said, speculating that he may be the youngest to be named a KDF poster artist since its beginning in 1981.

The Festival is a non-profit organization that promotes the Derby with an annual April kickoff celebration and multiple events leading up to Derby Day on the first Saturday of May. It has been a Kentucky staple since 1956.

Sears said his poster has a vintage movie-style theme to it, and includes an image of Pegasus gliding above the Louisville skyline, with three racing horses on a star-spangled background. He said he felt like it was a good theme to explore this year. His employer, CurrentMarketing, which has the Festival as a client, submitted Sears' work to the Festival. The official poster design will be used on more than 100 Derby and Festival retail products and will be plastered on everything from websites to billboards year-round.

The running of the 133rd Derby is on May 5, and until then, Sears plans to see where his life and talents take him. "I'm going to go on from here, and just see what the future holds." When Sears was an undergraduate, he majored in graphic design, designed several event t-shirts for his SigEp chapter, and worked on their website as well.

You can get the official poster for $20 or $40 for a limited-edition horizontal print.

Contact the Festival at (502) 584-6383 or visit www.kdf.org.

Logistics Professor Publishes First Text on RFID Metrics

BY GAY-LYNN CARPENTER, Editor

Ever wonder how your toll transponder works, that seemingly magical box that makes the toll gate open as you approach and then docks your account for the proper amount? The magician is radio frequency identification, or RFID, technology, which uses radio waves to automatically identify people or objects. Generally, RFID is a microchip that stores an identifying serial number and is connected to an antenna. Together, they send a signal that can be read by computers. From first to outline a detailed method for analyzing and deciding if RFID will work for various organizations. It explains how to develop new metrics and demonstrates a business “war game” for exploring RFID.

After 30 years of analyzing logistics and combat systems for the Department of Defense, Brother Hedgepeth came to the Logistics Department at the University of Alaska-Anchorage and now serves as its Chair. Hedgepeth has been writing and teaching about RFID for several years and began to see the possi-

Professor Oliver Hedgepeth's new text on RFID technology is published by CRC Press and available in bookstores or at amazon.com.

Brother Hedgepeth is already at work on a second book about RFID.

Hedgepeth recalls the significant influence SigEp had on him as an undergraduate at what was then called Atlantic Christian College (ACC): “When a SigEp walked into a classroom or the cafeteria, heads turned. They were the most respectful, and respected, men I had ever seen and had direction of where they were headed in life, not just on campus.” He makes a point to reach out to other fraternity men on his campus and lets them know how important it is to have a plan. “I tell them to always have a two-, five- and ten-year plan in their head of where they are going. That advice was given to me back at ACC and has made all the difference.”

And, Professor Oliver Hedgepeth, Barton College '67, is helping organizations determine if RFID is right for them with his newly-published text RFID Metrics: Decision Making Tools for Today's Supply Chains. The book is the

Then it evolved into a graduate-level booklet. Eventually, the editor of an industry publication asked him to write the book after hearing him speak at a conference on RFID at MIT.

B.M. “Mack” Rankin Inducted into McCombs Hall of Fame at Texas

This past November, B.M. “Mack” Rankin, Texas '50, was inducted into the McCombs School of Business Hall of Fame at the University of Texas. Brother Rankin, a private investor, management consultant and vice chairman of Freeport-McMoRan Copper & Gold, has been actively involved with the University, serving as chairman for fundraising efforts to rename and renovate the Royal-Texas Memorial Stadium. He has endowed an athletic scholarship and a professorship in Business Administration. Brother Rankin has also been a dedicated sponsor and fundraiser for Texas Alpha. Rankin was on SigEp's National Board of Directors from 1993 to 1995. He has served on the SigEp Educational Foundation Board of Trustees since 1993 and is now a Life Trustee and serves on the Board of Governors. He is also the recipient of the Sigma Phi Epsilon Citation.

Triple Duty on Arkansas Governor's Race for SigEps

BY J.D. LOWERY
Arkansas '06

Three SigEps recently worked together on Mike Beebe's successful campaign for Governor in Arkansas. The Wall Street Journal dubbed it one of the "most hotly contested" gubernatorial races in the country. Former Attorney General of Arkansas Beebe maintained a substantial lead over former Congressman and Undersecretary of Homeland Security Asa Hutchinson throughout the campaign and won by 14 percentage points, (55% versus 41%).

The charge was led by Campaign Manager Chris Masingill, Texas Wesleyan '96, who managed one of the largest grassroots efforts the state has ever seen and helped to shatter state fundraising records with $6 million raised. Masingill has served as the Deputy Finance Director for Blanch Lincoln's '98 Senate Campaign, Executive Director for the Democratic Party of Arkansas and as District Director for Congressman Mike Ross of Arkansas. As an undergraduate, he served as the Vice President of Member Development and President of the Student Government Association.

Masingill was joined by junior staffers J.D. Lowery, Arkansas '06, and Evan Tanner, Central Arkansas '01. Lowery, former president of Arkansas Alpha and Interfraternity Council President at Arkansas, served as a Communications Research Assistant/Field Organizer. Tanner is a former Recruitment Chair for Arkansas Zeta who, as a District Field Organizer, supervised organizing efforts for a large Arkansas county.

Their SigEp experiences as undergraduates prepared them for this great challenge, but it was an instant trust and respect that allowed Masingill, Lowery and Tanner to discover that brotherhood transcends their respective chapters and time. They carry those lessons with them as they continue their work for the people of Arkansas in the Governor's Office.

Wills Reelected

In other Arkansas political news, Robbie Wills, Central Arkansas '90, was re-elected to a second term in the 46th District of the Arkansas House of Representatives. Wills served as a Regional Director and President of the Central Arkansas Chapter.

Canada. Bauscher ships over 100,000 pieces of porcelain a day.

Brother Heaney served the Texas Delta Chapter as head of recruitment and Chapter Counselor after he graduated. He has worked in the food service industry for 20 years focusing on operations, dealer sales, and manufacturing sales and management. He got his start in sales through a fellow SigEp, Bill Flannery, U. of Houston '90. They worked together at Edward Don and Company. Prior to joining Bauscher, Heaney served on the Senior Management Team for Electrolux Professional as Electrolux launched its North American foodservice operations.

Heaney says the "diverse crowd at our chapter helped broaden all of our views on relationships with all kinds of people. That's important when you have a job with a national scope." He values his extensive network of SigEp contacts and tries to stay in touch online and in his travels. He notes that "it does seem like football season increases my contact," as he and some of his closest Brothers recently flew to Memphis for U. of Houston's Liberty Bowl game.

Fifteen Years of the Balanced Man Program

Dartmouth parents gather on the chapter house deck to learn more about how the Balanced Man Program develops balanced leaders for the world's communities.

Creating the Mome

BY THOMAS B. JELKE, PH.D.
Florida International, '90

Momentum is defined as "the power or strength of force gained by motion or through the development of events." Sigma Phi Epsilon has always tried to create and sustain positive momentum since its inception as a Fraternity that would be different. Innovative ideas, and the courage to implement those ideas, have fueled SigEp's meteoric rise to the top of the fraternity world.

One of SigEp's most revolutionary ideas is the Balanced Man Program (BMP). This year marks the 15th anniversary of the program. In 1991, former Grand President Donald C. McCleary, Texas '71, took a mandate from the undergraduate delegates to Grand Chapter, held that year in Washington, DC, to create a new kind of development program designed to build better Brothers and leaders, not better pledges. That concept was actualized by a committee of volunteer leaders and staff from across America chaired by another former Grand President, Frank J. Ruck, Jr., Michigan '46, who pioneered the ideals and structure for what is now known as the Balanced Man Program. Those committee members crafted the continuous development process taking undergraduates through four challenges (Sigma, Phi, Epsilon and Brother Mentor) in a way that would allow members to explore and engage with themselves, the Fraternity, their college or university and their community. They could only imagine how successful their concept would become, one that other fraternities, and even sororities, are now striving to emulate.

Positive Momentum for Many

The BMP has created positive momentum for many chapters. Tennessee Zeta at Lambuth College was recently highlighted in their local newspaper for service projects that stemmed from their BMP. The upperclassmen at Pennsylvania Theta of Carnegie Mellon University are more engaged with the Fraternity than ever now that the BMP provides them with an avenue to mentor younger members and give them experiential learning opportunities. Penn State's Pennsylvania Eta Chapter converted to the BMP and has since reclaimed its place at the top of their Greek community, winning IFC chapter of the year. Our newest BMP chapters at Cornell, Baylor, St. Mary's and Florida Gulf Coast are realizing just how much Chapters that run the Balanced Man Program properly are among SigEp's finest chapters and among the best fraternities in the country.

Jeff Johnson, Colorado '89, was on the Headquarters staff and helped implement the Balanced Man Program. He held one of the first training sessions for Balanced Man Stewards at the University of Richmond, just one of the initiatives he drove to get the program ramped up.

difference this program can make on recruitment and operations.

As of today, 202 chapters run the BMP. Those that run the program properly are among SigEp's finest chapters and among the best fraternities in the country: strong in manpower, retention, programming, operations, and member development. Those chapter members also hold the values and Cardinal Principles of the Fraternity very closely to their hearts. We could review dozens of success stories about the BMP. As a practical matter, we'll look closely at two.

Sigma Phi Epsilon chapter since 1909! SigEp was on the brink of dissolution because of declining membership. Many of the best male students at Dartmouth avoided joining fraternities, and Dartmouth leaders realized that something significant needed to change if they were going to attract those men and make their chapter experience more meaningful.

After much discussion at the National Fraternity with then-Grand President Bruce Hasenkamp, Dartmouth '60, and others, Dartmouth unanimously voted to adopt the BMP, and they saw results almost immediately. Quality individuals (men who espoused and lived out the Cardinal Principles and Sound Mind and Sound Body ideal) were attracted to SigEp's new development process. The chapter went from recruiting fewer than 10 men a year in the early 90s to recruiting 30 or more consistently. Membership has risen to just over 90 quality men. Equally as important, the chapter has been able to retain those quality men by delivering on their promise to continuously challenge them and develop them into leaders. Heckman notes that "we are the largest fraternity at Dartmouth while being among the most selective. Our members are students and leaders with a wide variety of backgrounds and interests."

"The program has also created strong fraternal bonds among chapter members that differ significantly from many of those who belonged to SigEp before the BMP. There is almost no attrition. It is impossible to believe that this kind of turnaround and continued success would be remotely possible without the BMP," Heckman says. The momentum generated by the chapter has gotten ntum to Dominate

A Tale of Two Chapters

The power of the BMP is clearly seen through the story of two chapters that run the program to near perfection: New Hampshire Alpha at Dartmouth College and Illinois Alpha at the University of Illinois. Although the two schools and the two Greek communities are very different, the two chapters have seen similar results since their implementation of the BMP.

Dartmouth College

Dartmouth was one of the pilot schools to implement the BMP back in 1992. The chapter (and the Greek community) was in disarray because of steps the college was taking towards abolishing Greek Life altogether. That says something for a school that has hosted fraternities since 1841, and a ment process. Chapter Counselor Carey Heckman, Dartmouth '76, recalled that a chapter report from early 1993 said the program enjoyed "an overwhelmingly positive initial reaction among recruits" mainly because of the program's emphasis on leadership, service learning, and experience-based learning.

Also attractive was the elimination of pledging. Most men who joined New Hampshire Alpha had no interest in Dartmouth's "conventional fraternities." The members of New Hampshire Alpha were able to recruit quality men, and a noticed by administrators at Dartmouth College. Dartmouth has often been praised by college administrators for its bold initiative, operational excellence, and leadership in the Greek community.

University of Illinois

There was a time when University of Illinois lost their positive momentum. Illinois Alpha was not only on the brink of closing, it actually did close in 1996 because of lack of performance. The University allowed the chapter to return earlier than originally scheduled partly because of the BMP and its potential to revolutionize member development. Members and volunteers credit the program with helping the chapter rise from the ashes and achieve prominence at the largest Greek community (63

“Year-round recruitment is the cornerstone of the Balanced Man Program and we saw this as a distinct competitive fraternities, 38 sororities) in the nation.

Much like Dartmouth, the members of Illinois Alpha saw the strength in being different, especially when it came to recruitment. One big difference is that, since members can advance through the different BMP challenges individually, there are no structural limits to when the chapter can recruit new members. Balanced Man Steward Chris Dillion, Illinois '03, a founding father of the re-colonized chapter, noted how that difference played out: “Year-round recruitment is the cornerstone of the Balanced Man Program and we saw this as a distinct competitive advantage at our traditional Greek campus, where most other fraternities are stuck in Fall-only efforts.” That year-round recruitment effort is significantly enhanced for SigEps because they use the program itself as the main product they sell to recruits. “Illinois Alpha uses the BMP as the hallmark of their recruitment efforts, attracting men that desire more out of their college experience...it allows us to attract the right men, which in turn strengthens the program and the chapter.”

Former Chapter President Jeff Harden, Illinois '07, added “recruits join SigEp because they know the BMP will make them better men.” The chapter has grown to 160 members (#1 on campus) while maintaining a chapter GPA of 3.39 (#2 on campus), and boasts dozens of leaders in campus organizations. They have the lowest attrition rate on campus, and achieve nearly 100% acceptance rate from the bids they give out. Illinois Alpha's success is based on four things according to AVC Vice President D. Shawn Dalgleish, Illinois '80: “Simply put, the chapter identifies and recruits men that will benefit from the BMP experience, effectively conveys how the BMP fits into their goals of a successful college career, secures their membership, and continually challenges them to reach new heights through creative Sound Mind and Sound Body programming and expectations.” Chapter leaders also acknowledge that the expectation of upperclassmen to stay engaged and involved through mentoring opportunities and targeted programs for members in the Epsilon and Brother Mentor challenges has provided stability and strength to the chapter.

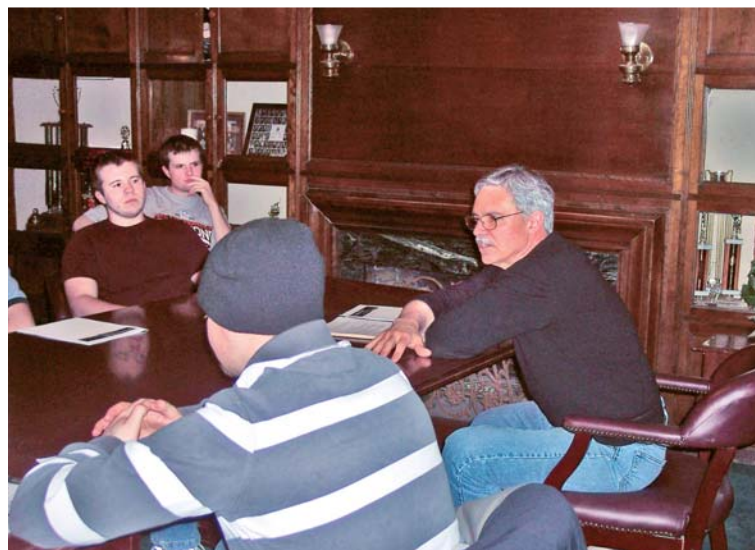

Illinois Alpha has found a seamless connection between the BMP and their Residential Learning Community program. The learning environment and opportunities created by the RLC are used by chapter members to fulfill some of their challenge expectations. They are also the first chapter at the University of Illinois to host an accredited class in their fraternity house—a class taught by Faculty Fellow, Ray Zielinski, Ph.D., which includes several SigEp members.

The key ingredients to a successful BMP

While the successes of both of these chapters are powerful statements of the momentum that the BMP can provide, it should be noted that both Dartmouth and Illinois have overcome obstacles along the way. Indeed, most chapters struggle with many of the same issues when it comes to the BMP. But the best ones learn how to conquer them. The program needs all of its key components to function properly:

- year-round recruitment
- strong commitment to the Ritual and values of the Fraternity
- individual-based progress through the challenges
- single-tiered membership with no hazing
- opportunities to mentor and be mentored at various stages of the program
- continuous Sound Mind and Sound Body programming

- individual and chapter commitment to service to the community
- experiential learning
- a connection to other SigEp programs such as the Balanced Man Scholarship and the Residential Learning Community (RLC)

- actively engaged AVC

Leaving out any of these components can slow or even stop the momentum a chapter has created. Heckman emphasized the importance of "an accurate and continuously refreshed understanding of the BMP's core values, purpose, and principles" among recruits, all members, volunteers and alumni. That is needed for the program to be successful in the long run.

SigEp expects to add to the momentum of the BMP by upgrading and creating new resources for chapters, many of them online. An online resource center and tracker will soon be available. Challenge coordinators, Vice Presidents of Development and chapter members will be able to view their progress and review more detailed information on programming ideas.

On the 15th anniversary of the Balanced Man Program, all SigEps should be proud of the momentum our Fraternity has created. Our development program has been touted as revolutionary by university faculty and administrators across the country. It has been studied and mimicked by other national fraternities and sororities. We have been unafraid to be different and have demonstrated, once again, that this Fraternity will be successful by being different. Chapters that run the BMP correctly have proven that success.

Five Ways to Improve your Balanced Man Program

- 1 : Provide programming options for all members in: Academics, Health/Wellness, Ritual/Values, Civic/Service, Leadership/Professional, Cultural, and Social. These areas will develop Sound Mind and Sound Body among members.
- 2 : Provide an overview of your chapter's four-year member development program to recruits so they understand exactly how the Fraternity can enhance their undergraduate experience. Written expectations improve results (see The Quest, Balanced Man Guide and online recruiting resources).
- 3 : Facilitate ongoing Ritual and Values discussions specifically designed for members who have participated in the Epsilon Rite of Passage/Rite of Initiation. This demonstrates that the Ritual is just the beginning, not the end. Development is a lifelong pursuit based on personal reflection and continued meaningful action.
- 4 : Appoint/Elect a Senior Chairman to coordinate events exclusively for seniors/Brother Mentors according to their needs and interests. If SigEp doesn't fulfill their needs, we risk losing momentum with those who can bring along our newest members.
- 5 : Provide alumni mentors for all junior and senior members, pairing career aspirations with experienced professionals. SigEp is uniquely positioned to prepare our members for post-graduation, smoothing their transition to the "real world."

It's all in the numbers

BY GARRY C. KIEF
Southern California '70

During the past few months, several major publications have reported on the recent trend by some select educational institutions to "cook the numbers."

Operating on the theory that alumni feel more compelled to contribute to a successful and far reaching organization, they routinely hedge their bets to make it look like a much higher percentage of alumni contribute than actually do.

We don't do that.

We report just the facts.

I'd like to say that we have an overwhelming desire to be upfront and conduct business in transparency. We do.

Of course, we also have some pretty good facts to report.

Each year we know we can count on at least 5,000 SigEps to contribute to the Foundation. And in the fraternity world, that's a pretty good number.

Granted, there are some older fraternities that hit a much higher number. And someday we'll get there. Because on a great note, our numbers keep going up year after year after year.

Articles in the Sigma Phi Epsilon Foundation Report were written by Doug Scheibe, Kansas State '87, and E. Scott Thompson, II, Southern Mississippi '99.

our alumni and built a strong base of supporters who believe in SigEp and believe in the future of our undergraduate Brothers.

Now, under the direction of Doug Scheibe, Kansas State '87, the trend continues to soar.

We think that a lot of that growth is due to the national realization that it really is YOUR Foundation. You can control where your money goes. You can monitor its impact. And you can contribute easily and reliably via online contributions and a variety of tax deductible programs.

Of course, we also know that the growth is because of the amazing scholarship and leadership programs developed by the Fraternity and its staff of relentless professionals and inexhaustible volunteers.

To maintain that growth, however, we know that we need to reach beyond those 5,000 reliables.

Just think what your Fraternity could achieve if we really did match our peers and engage all 150,000

The pattern was started by Chuck White, Western Michigan '62, as he gradually reached out to Brothers who are reading this Journal.

If each of those Brothers contributed just $10...we could more than double our existing programs. Just think... only $10. And you could do it right now by going online at www.sigepfoundation.org

Hats off to the 5,000 that keep the lights on, the scholarships flowing, and the leadership courses expanding.

And to the 145,000...please consider joining in the campaign to build World Leaders.

It's your Foundation.

It's your Fraternity.

And it needs you.

New Treasurer

Mark Davis, Nebraska '90, is the new Treasurer for the Sigma Phi Epsilon Educational Foundation, following his friend and Brother Jim Clayton, Tennessee '57.

2006 Sigma Phi Epsilon Educational Foundation Fund Raising and Operations Report

BY DOUG SCHEIBE
Kansas State '87, Executive Director

Sigma Phi Epsilon is a valued partner in higher education.

Your support drives our success.

SigEp is...

- A valuable vehicle for alumni, parents and friends seeking to prepare men for academic success and success in life.
- A valuable benefactor for men seeking academic achievement and leadership experience.
- A valuable educational resource, supporting the mission of each of our host institutions.

The Sigma Phi Epsilon Educational Foundation – your Foundation – connects these needs and goals by raising, growing and distributing the required financial resources.

In 2006, our value increased. Thanks to the generosity of over 5,000 donors, 2006 saw the second highest fund raising total in SigEp history – over $1.8 million. It was also a strong year in the market for Foundation assets managed by Bessemer Trust, returning 14.5%.

This success, combined with the momentum from $2.3 million in fund raising the previous year, enabled 2006 grants to reach an all-time high of $1.3 million for scholarships, leadership programs and Residential Learning Community housing projects.

$1.3 million.

All to enhance the higher education of our undergraduate Brothers.

Your efforts have impressive overall results, making SigEp the most attractive college fraternity experience in America with the most men on campus and the highest grade point average – 3.02.

Thanks to you, hundreds of men received scholarships that encouraged and enabled their ability to pursue their diploma. Hundreds more benefited from faculty interaction and innovative programming in new or improved chapter homes. Thousands of SigEps on campus received leadership training in SigEp's Leadership Continuum, which was recognized by higher education professionals as the most innovative in the Greek system.

The Foundation is not only working to connect needs and goals with the necessary financial resources; we are working to connect alumni with each other. SigEp is a lifetime experience.

A website (www.sigepfoundation.org) was established to help alumni connect with each other by chapter, area, profession, and giving level. There is even a career center for the posting of resumes and jobs, making the SigEp network truly national and not limited to a few home chapter Brothers.

We expect a successful 2007 and more success as Sigma Phi Epsilon becomes even more valuable as a partner in higher education, preparing men for success in college and success in life.

Profiles in Giving • Willenbrock Scholarship: Honoring with Education

Most chapters have a Brother whose name is instantly recognized by SigEps from his era. Some chapters are fortunate enough to have a Brother who volunteers for years on the Alumni and Volunteer Corporation. Kevin K. "Skip" Willenbrock, Colorado '81, was both for the Colorado Alpha Chapter.

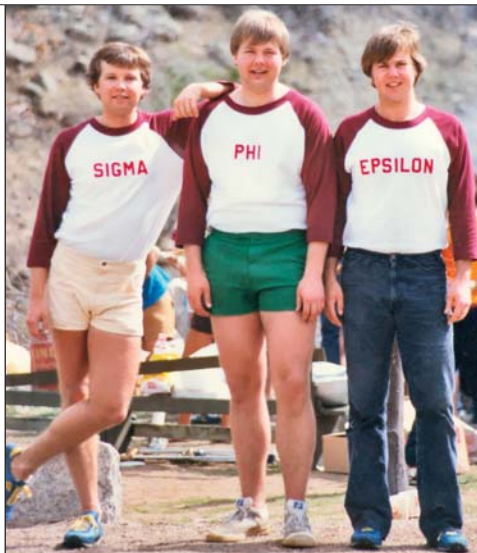

Also known as "Bear," Skip was one of three SigEp Willenbrock brothers including Alan F. "Puck" Willenbrock, Colorado '83, and H. C. "Tad" Willenbrock III, Colorado '83.

A campus and chapter leader as an undergraduate, Skip loved the Fraternity and was well known and admired by Brothers throughout the 1970s, 80s and 90s. Upon graduation he joined the ranks of local volunteers in Boulder, where he served as the AVC President for over ten years, right up through the painful closing of the chapter in 1994.

While the chapter was dormant, he carefully preserved its memorabilia, including the original chapter roster from the first roll books in 1904. After a valiant fight with esophageal cancer, he died on October 1, 2006, and Colorado Alpha Brothers from all eras are ensuring his legacy is preserved.

Shortly after Skip's memorial, Chris Bittman, Colorado '85, approached the Willenbrock family about establishing a scholarship in Skip's honor. They generously committed $25,000, and soon the news spread to other SigEps via email. A goal of $50,000 was set to permanently endow four scholarships for the undergraduates.

Within a month donors gave over $36,000 for the scholarship. Some of the donors were relatives of the family, and some, like Doug Morrison,

The Willenbrock brothers, Alan, '83, Kevin, '81, and Tad, '83, spell out the Fraternity name at Colorado's Spring chapter retreat in 1980 at Chataqua Park in Boulder.

Colorado '33, never met Skip but were inspired by his commitment.

The Willenbrock Endowment even prompted Kent B. Hickman, Colorado '61, to establish an additional endowment to help Colorado Alpha Brothers.

Alan Willenbrock noted, "Bear's best life-long friends were from the SigEp house. He embodied all that SigEp stands for: a scholar, an athlete, and a community volunteer, and he will be missed by all of his SigEp family."

Over half of the donations were made online at www.sigepfoundation.org. Donors specified the Willenbrock endowment when they made their gift, and many had their gifts matched by their companies. For 42 donors, this was their first gift to the SigEp Educational Foundation.

Dedication of a memorial plaque at the house is scheduled for Colorado's homecoming on September 29, 2007, and donations are still being accepted for the Willenbrock Scholarship. Please visit www.sigepfoundation.org/donations. After selecting the chapter specific fund, click on Colorado Alpha from the dropdown menu. In the Donor Comments box, please specify the Willenbrock Scholarship.

Endowments can be established to recognize a milestone event, the contributions of a Brother, or other worthy cause. Find out how you can establish one for your chapter or contribute to one that exists. Contact Doug Scheibe at 804.353.1901 ext. 319.

Doud-Clayton Winners will award $10K in Scholarships

Call for Nominations

Do you know of a great story about Brothers helping Brothers? It may be worth $10,000 in scholarships. If you have benefited from or witnessed an amazing example of Brothers helping Brothers, go to www.sigepfoundation.org to nominate SigEps for the Doud-Clayton Award. The Brothers who win the award will be given the opportunity to designate $10,000 in undergraduate scholarships as they decide. All SigEp undergraduates and alumni are eligible for the award. The criteria for selection is simply Brothers helping Brothers, just like when Wally Doud, Wisconsin '48, helped Jim Clayton, Tennessee '57, with a complex business situation. So tell your amazing story, and give those Brothers a chance to help even more Brothers with these scholarships.

Nominations accepted until May 31, 2007. Call Foundation Executive Director Doug Scheibe with questions — 804-353-1901 ext. 319.

Profiles in Giving • SigEp Makes Annual Giving a Habit for 38th Time

In 1939, a young Harry Coolidge, Wisconsin '42, transferred from Carleton College to the University of Wisconsin-Madison. An accounting major who worked as a waiter in the dorms between classes, Harry found a home with SigEp. His studies made him a natural fit for handling the books, and he became the chapter's controller. A few years later, he recruited his younger brother, Chuck, and their friends from Park Falls, Wisconsin. Throughout his college days, he knew the importance of getting a good education.

Upon graduating in 1942, he joined the Navy Air Corps. Over the next four decades he worked for such corporations as Dayton Hudson (now known as Target) and Northern Pacific Railroads (now known as Burlington Northern). He was President of the Society for the Advancement of Management and active with the Data Processing Management Association (now the Association of Information Technology Professionals). Throughout the years, he has always treasured his Fraternity experience and what it meant to him.

While living in Minneapolis, he received a call from Curt Carlson, Minnesota '37. Curt held a meeting and called on a list of SigEps to help revive his chapter at the University of Minnesota. Remembering his time as a college student, Harry donated both his time and money. He attended the initial meetings with the new chapter and mentored the Brothers. His gift helped boost the chapter's scholarship fund.

Over time, he began to give to the annual fund. Soon it became a habit. In 2006, SigEp saw the 38th year of annual gifts from Harry Coolidge. No other SigEp has donated for a longer period of time. He sends gifts to the Educational Foundation when his appeal arrives in the mail.

"I've always been stuck on education. I know college students will always have a need for scholarships," he said. "I benefited from some high school scholarships and wanted to make sure I helped others. My wife and I were brought up with small town values," he added. "We believe that you should always help your neighbor."

His generosity ensures our Brothers receive scholarships from the Educational Foundation.

"We are what we repeatedly do—success in life is not an act but a habit." —Aristotle

Profiles in Giving • Bill Schreyer, Penn State '48

Brother Schreyer started giving to the Sigma Phi Epsilon Educational Foundation in 1976, and he has made it a habit ever since, including several major single gifts and by endowing scholarships for men from his beloved Pennsylvania Eta. He won the legendary Centennial Conclave banner auction with a gift of $100,000 to the Foundation.

He has also given his time as a long-time Foundation Trustee and Co-Chair of the Campaign for the Heart in the early 1990s (with the late Curt Carlson, Minnesota '37). "I remember Curt asking me to meet with him, and I was excited to meet with the legendary Curt Carlson. I got to the place first, and he arrived a little later. I was thinking we would have some time to talk and then maybe get dinner. But it was a quick meeting – he got around to asking me for a commitment, and before I had time to finish my drink, he was gone," Schreyer said.

But the brief encounter made a long-lasting impression. "He set the tone for all of us who had significant resources. I loved Curt. I have been involved ever since, and I look forward to helping in any way I can in the future."

Brother Schreyer is committed to enhancing higher education in many ways, including working with his alma mater to establish the Schreyer Honors College.

Bill Schreyer is chairman emeritus and former CEO of Merrill Lynch & Co. He is also a past president of Penn State's Board of Trustees, where he and his wife Joan endowed the Schreyer Honors College in 1997. Curt Carlson founded the Carlson Companies and Radisson Hotels. The Carlson School of Management at the University of Minnesota is named for him.

Profiles in Giving • John Grayson, Purdue '46

In 2005, Brother Grayson made a commitment of $460,000 to the Foundation in the form of a charitable remainder annuity trust. This money is invested with Bessemer Trust, which manages the Foundation's assets, and provides a monthly income for his cousin throughout her life and then will yield the remainder as a one-time gift.

"I have been fortunate in my life," Grayson said, "and when I sold a building I had held for my business, I had a large capital gain and was reluctant to pay the taxes. My cousin needed the income, and assigning the management to Bessemer was helpful since, one day, I will eventually not be able to administer the trust. Making this kind of charitable gift was a solution to all my needs."

Grayson began giving to the Sigma Phi Epsilon Educational Foundation in 1969 with a $10 gift. He made his first major gift with a $150,000 commitment to the Campaign for the Heart.

"I believe in giving to SigEp, and I continue to make an annual contribution to the Foundation. I also get a call from my home chapter and help them with some housing funds they need from time to time," Brother Grayson said.

SigEp Leadership Continuum

Profiles in Giving • “Why I Give and Keep on Giving”

If you've been to Conclave, you've seen him there. At a CLA or the Ruck Leadership Institute, he's facilitating or talking to groups of Brothers, old and young. Past Grand President and Order of the Golden Heart recipient John W. Hartman, Missouri-Columbia '61, is not only one of the SigEp's most visible alumni, he is one of its most loyal. For the past 38 years he's contributed to the Educational Foundation because of the impact it makes in the leadership development of our Brothers.

And John would know better than most; he's been there since the very beginning of SigEp leadership programs.

In the early 1960s he was a young professional out to conquer corporate America. And his Fraternity called. Then Grand President Bedford Black, Wake Forest '41, asked him to come to Conclave. He did and got hooked. He volunteered to be District Governor. In 1964, the Fraternity formed the National Leadership Committee with a simple goal: to become the leader in the fraternity world; leadership education and training must take place for Brothers on a national basis. Soon the National Leadership Academies were born, and to John, the push for leadership was exciting. He could see the positive impact it had on our Brothers.

Just a few years later, membership in fraternities plummeted due to the Vietnam War and the counter-culture popular on campus. With revenues impacted, J. Edward Zollinger, William & Mary '27, directed resources from the Educational Foundation into the leadership development of Sigma Phi Epsilon. Now those needs of our Brothers could be met by contributions from alumni and friends of the Fraternity.

According to John, “I had an opportunity to help make the world a better place by working to see that members of our Fraternity are given the tools early in life to achieve their potential and have a positive influence. So when Zolly asked alumni to get things started, no was not an option. Now 38 years later down my journey of life, no is still not an option, because the dividends are large and real. SigEp can and does change men's lives. I have the cards and letters so many of you have written to prove it.”

Today those NLAs are the Carlson Leadership Academies.

His parting words as Grand President at the 1979 Grand Chapter Conclave were “take care of my Fraternity and make it grow.” Growth came not only in membership, but in programs: EDGE, Carlson Leadership Academies, Ruck Leadership Institute, and Tragos Quest to Greece. In all SigEp has reached thousands through the Leadership Continuum.

John said, “My passion is looking on the face of a young man telling of how SigEp made a difference in his life. Yes, SigEp is ‘Building Balanced Leaders for the World's Communities,’ and saying no is still not an option.”

I wanted to take some time to express my appreciation to the Ruck Leadership Institute for the opportunity to be a part of this exciting and interesting guest speakers to the Ruck Leadership Institute. Personally for me, it was beneficial for me and other SigEps.

The leadership conference gave me great ideas on how I can further lead my chapter into the future. This event also gave me a great sense of excitement for the future, it reaffirmed my interest in being a leader in my chapter, my school and my community at large.

Thank you for taking the time to face the right track for “Building Balanced Leaders for the World's Communities.” I hope the good work and again, thank you.

Sincerely,

Tommy P. Somphou

Profiles in Giving • In his own words...

Chris Porto, Virginia Tech '08, attended the 2006 Tragos Quest to Greece. He is in Japan for the Spring 2007 semester taking language and business classes at Kansai Gaidai University near Osaka. He plans to work as an investment banker for a multinational organization dealing with Japanese markets. Here are his thoughts on how the Tragos Quest to Greece impacted his life.

"It has really taught me to reach for the stars in my career aspirations. I realized that the idea of experiential learning to become most knowledgeable about a subject is the best way to learn. The Quest has shaped my goals for my career as well as in life by realizing what the Ancient Greeks meant about being a virtuous leader."

"The Quest to Greece prepared me for this transition by allowing me to be my true self with a group of guys that I knew all had the same values that I hold so close."

"Learning about the Ancient Greeks first hand and interacting with some of the most balanced leaders within SigEp was a profound experience that provided me with invaluable knowledge in my development."

Brother Trane McCloud, Tennessee '89, was killed in December in Iraq when the helicopter he was riding in lost power. He leaves behind a wife, three children, and a legacy of goodwill. Brother McCloud was a fine example of the qualities of men of Sigma Phi Epsilon. He is pictured in the Ford Fairlane he carefully restored.

Our Very Own Frat Boys

Chapters that do not live up to the ideals of Sigma Phi Epsilon bring dishonor and disgrace to our name. The Journal reports these stories to inform its readers and to show that actions have consequences.

Florida Epsilon, Florida State University

Reason: Hazing

Actions: Chapter Suspended

Florida State University police investigating suspicious activities at an off-campus residence arrested four FSU students on hazing charges. The ongoing criminal investigation is examining reports and statements of 31 alleged hazing victims, members of Sigma Phi Epsilon, who were being held in a crawl space under the residence—a private residence, not the chapter house facility. Police dispatched officers to the chapter house to arrest the chapter president, but found he was away for a weekend IFC leadership retreat.

No injuries were reported, but the National Board of Directors, in conjunction with the university administration, immediately suspended the chapter. An Alumni Advisory Council has been empanelled to conduct a membership review of any of the 97 chapter members who wish to continue to be members. The AAC will decide whether to invite back a core group to reorganize and restart the chapter with a commitment to substantive changes to become a valued partner in FSU's educational mission. The chapter had 47 members above 3.0 GPA, and four with 4.0 GPAs—usually strong indicators of a chapter's potential to improve. The chapter has 1,757 total initiated members.

Florida Mu, University of Central Florida

Reason: Hazing

Action: Chapter Closed

A new member at our Central Florida chapter was reportedly injured during a timed exercise activity at an off-campus rural property. An investigation revealed potential hazing activities in the chapter's programming. The Fraternity explored options with the university to realign the 123-man chapter which has 971 total initiated members. In light of two prior high-profile fraternity hazing incidents at other UCF fraternities with intense media attention, we successfully negotiated closure of the chapter while protecting the house for our eventual return to campus. The house will be leased to a sorority in the meantime.

Kansas Capital Campaign Launched

BY MARK ALLEN
Kansas '78

SigEp at Kansas is undertaking a major addition and renovation, seeking to continue to build on a tradition in place since 1923. "We seek men of the highest caliber to join our brotherhood. We look for only those men who meet rigorous standards in both body and mind," said founding member James Naismith, '23. "Our goal is to recruit and form our men to be useful and productive adults." Those words rang true when Naismith said them 75 years ago. They still hold for the members of Kansas Gamma today as it launches its Capital Campaign, KUSigEpNow! Naismith was Kansas' first athletic director, and, oh yes, may be remembered best as the inventor of basketball and co-founder of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Naismith '23

SigEp has a proud history at Kansas. Kansas Gamma was forced to sell its first chapter house as a result of declining membership during World War II as many KU men served their country. A new house, opened in 1949 in Lawrence, Kansas, was a state-of-the-art facility for the times. Only once, due to a serious fire in 1988, have the men of Kansas Gamma been called on to raise funds.

The unique design of the KU facility increases its size by 5,200 square feet, or about 40%. The addition will include a large, naturally lit library/living room, 11 new, well appointed, two-man study rooms, and a beautiful interior open-air courtyard with an overlooking balcony. As the chapter moves toward Residential Learning Community (RLC) status, the renovated chapter facility will continue to advance its state-of-the-art technology (hardware and software), educational conferencing facilities, and links to University programming. The Chapter will further support the principles of the RLC by working with campus faculty and instructors to build its mentoring programs.

This artist rendering shows the Kansas Gamma chapter house planned for SigEp members. The chapter is over half way toward its fundraising goal.

"We will be calling on our nearly 2,000 alumni members to work together to bring this project to reality," states Larry Miller, '78, Campaign Co-chair. "We have commitments of over $800,000 toward our goal of $1.4 million. We feel it's important for our alumni to recall their days at KU SigEp by supporting the effort to improve the facility. While our fraternity is more about our members than a building, we also recognize that we must stay competitive with all areas of student housing in the Lawrence community."

Utilizing the resources of its membership, the effort has crossed generations of members. The fundraising campaign has been directed by Mark Allen, '78, Kansas chapter counselor and fundraising consultant. Serving as co-chair with Miller is Michael Dalbom, '04. Among the key Campaign Committee members are Ben Craig, '50, Roth Gatewood, '55, Del Williamson, '60, Jack Kilroy, '69, Bernie Becker, '74, Dale Seufferling, '77, Tom Gray, '77, and Pat Allen, '03.

"We have so many great alumni members," says Seufferling. "The traditions of KU SigEp and the strength of our alumni base make us realize how important it is for us to continually build our resources for future generations. That is what will make this campaign a success."
